Our National Capital Happenings!

[Special correspondence DAILY NEWS.]

WASHINGTON, April 13, 1891.

The President evidently isn't fretting about what Italy may or may not do but is arranging matters to start to-morrow on his western trip just as if Italy was not in existence. The rumor that Italy had notified Mr. Blaine that unless the answer to Rudini's last dispatch was received by the 14th inst., our minister would be sent his passports and told to get out of Italy has few believers here, although it has been reiterated by cable from Rome. Mr. Blaine declines to talk about the matter at all, so that it cannot be positively stated that the answer has been sent to that dispatch, although it is known that it was prepared and approved by the President and cabinet several days ago, and I have reason to believe that it was forwarded by mail to our minister at Rome to be by him presented to Rudini, although the dispatch bag sent to that official from the Department of State may not after all have contained it.

It certainly had not been received in Rome up to Saturday night or the semi-official Italian press would not have repeated the twaddle about what Rudini would do if it was not received by Tuesday of this week. When Mr. Blaine decides not to talk one might as well try to interview a marble statue. The impression here is that these rumors are originated by Rudini's friends for the purpose of hurrying Mr. Blaine's answer. If this be Mr. Blaine's opinion and the answer has not gone I should not be surprised if it was intentionally kept back for a time by Mr. Blaine just to show these excitable Italians that he meant exactly what he said when he wrote in answer to Baron Fava's demand, that this government declined to be hurried.

We are not so defenseless as some people think. Hear Assistant Secretary of-war Grant on the subject: "Within the last few days much has been said about the powerful navy and the heavy guns of a European nation, and fear has been expressed that such heavy armament might enter the harbor of some of our largest cities. Let them come in if they want to; they would go no more out forever. So perfectly and effectively has the work of destruction been planed and carried out that within a surprisingly short time there can be placed beneath the water surface an indefinite number of destructive explosives and those can be so arranged that vessels may pass over them unharmed and arrange themselves in line of battle ready for attack, and then by a simple touch on the shore there will come instantaneous explosions all along the line, sufficient to destroy in an instant of time the largest fleet that could find room in one of our harbors."

Secretary Foster has gone to New York on private business, but while there he intends to personally investigate some matters that have been brought to his attention concerning the Federal offices in that city. He is determined that the administration of those offices shall be as near perfection as he can make it, believing that the more satisfactory the immense Federal business in the great commercial center is transacted the stronger it will make the republican party.

Secretary Tracy is in dead earnest about taking the navy yards of the country out of politics, and he is already hard at work arranging the details. The Civil Service Commission is very anxious to assist him, but he thinks his plan a better one than the complicated red tape system of the commission and has declined its proffered assistance.

Mr. F. N. Nedecker, a prominent German banker of Indiana, is in Washington at the request of the President, and it is known that he has been tendered the U. S. Treasurership to succeed Mr. Huston, whose resignation has been in the President's hand for some time, and believed that he has accepted the office. Mr. Huston has just returned to Washington from Indiana and it is thought that he comes for the purpose of transferring his office to Mr. Nedecker.

I am informed that, as an act of precaution, arrangements are being perfected to expedite the work upon all naval vessels now under contract in various ship yards and the making of the heavy guns for their armament.

The Postoffice department has perfected plans for putting on a fast night mail train between this city and New York that will result in a great saving of time in the forwarding of mail matter for the eastern States. The train is to leave here at 8.30 p. m. and make connection at New York with the early trains on all eastern roads.

The president has appointed H G. Parker, of Missouri, a colored man, to be alternate Commissioner at-large of the Columbian Exposition and ex-Representative Crounse, of Nebraska, to be assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

Will Assist the Commonwealth

We notice by the Monday's Lock Haven papers that ex-Judge John H. Orvis, of this place, has been engaged to assist district attorney Brumgard, of Lock Haven, in the prosecution of the homicide case against Charles Cleary, for the murder of Policeman Paul in Renovo, which trial will begin in Lock Haven on Monday, the 27th inst. If the people of that county desire a conviction the district attorney is to be congratulated on his choice of an assistant, but if public sentiment is in favor of young Cleary, the fact that Judge Orvis has been engaged to assist the prosecution is to be deplored.

Patriotism or Mourning, Which?

Early Monday morning, when the first news from Italy was received, a painter was set to work to adorn the big telephone pole standing in front of the exchange. The red and white stripes were put on and then bad news must certainly have been received for the painter completed his job by putting on a big black stripe. Now, the query is: Is the telephone company patriotic or in mourning, or has that pole been adorned simply as a sign for Storm's barber shop?

An Awful Accident.

ALBANY, April 13.—A freight train collided with a gravel train on the Delaware and Hudson railroad today. Two Italians were killed outright and three injured. The wreck took fire and as the flames approached the cries and groans of the imprisoned workmen were heart rending. Owing to the position of the cars and the intense heat the rescuers were unable to reach them and were obliged to watch them slowly burn to death before their eyes. The names of the Italians are unknown, but it is understood they were all men of families.

THERE'S one good thing to be said of Governor-Senator David B. Hill—He doesn't believe in free trade; but so much can hardly be truthfully said of his pricipal competitor for the democratic nomination—Mr. Cleveland.

LESSON OF BARNUM'S LIFE.

NOTORIETY FOR PROFIT WAS THE GREAT AIM OF HIS EFFORTS.

To the Editor of The Times:

Now that the great showman and grand humbug of the age is dead, leaving a large fortune, we are treated to a vast amount of gush from the press and pulpit as to Barnum's achievements in life and the reason he leaves with his fortune.

Barnum possessed no higher aim in life than the love of notoriety and that he might profit by it. He had in the conflict of life no ambition for honest fame—the glory of achievement in getting gain was all. His whole resource was a cleverness in playing upon the credulity of his fellow-man. He was intuitively wise in methods to his end and at cost of truth would not scruple to attain them, but notoriety was the ruling passion.

Riding up Broadway, New York, in the horse car, he turns to a fellow passenger and says: "There's Grace Church, the most fashionable and aristocratic church in the city, I had Tom Thumb married there and I blocked Broadway and stopped the whole traffic of the thoroughfare for over three hours. I then took them down to the museum, where the Herald building now stands, and I blocked the street for two hours more," and he beamed with inward satisfaction at the thought of his success in playing upon the credulity of the public.

Is the example worthy of such commendation as we are having? The "bunco steerer" is the outgrowth and advance graduate of Barnum's lessons and a creation and growth since Barnum's time. The child whom Barnum's emblazonry enlisted to believe and confide in is scarcely well equipped at manhood for the battle of life if he means to contest it on a field where high honor is to be he ruled and the glory of his own fame the aim. Very truly yours,

J. M.

BELLEFONTE, April 11, 1891.

IN view of recent occurences it would seem proper that a law should be enacted compelling all foreigners who come to this country with the intention of engaging in business, in any capacity, to renounce allegiance to their former country and make application for citizenship in our own. At first glance such a law would appear to be unnecessarily harsh; but it isn't. Its opponents will charge that it will restrict immigration, and it will; and that is just what this country has got to do sooner or later, the sooner the better, and in what better way can it be done than by compelling all foreigners desirous of enjoying the advantages of living in this country to declare their intention of becoming American citizens?

Appointed U. S. Treasurer.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The president this afternoon appointed Enos H. Nebaker, of Indiana, to be United States treasurer, vice Huston, resigned. Nebaker left for his home in Covington, Indiana, this afternoon. It is said to be probable that he will not assume charge of the office for some time yet, and when he does the usual formalities, such as counting the cash, including 4,500 tons of coin and hundreds of millions of notes and bonds, must be undertaken.

To put it in slang: Italy's big bluff failed to rattle Mr. Blaine even a little bit, and the promptness with which he planked down the chips for a raise so completely knocked out the macaroni eater that he laid down his ace high hand without more ado. Moral: Europeans should let the American national game alone.

"It is too late to cry when your head is off;" but before you say "no use," try Old Saul's Catarrh Cure and see how quickly and pleasantly you will be cured of catarrh and influenza.

More Fishermen than Fish.

Trout season opened this morning and, although it was none of the best mornings for fish yet scores of would be fishermen took advantage of the opportunity to go forth and try their luck on the spreckled beauties. At a close guess there were about 999 fishermen between Bellefonte and Axe Mann and about one third that many trout. As a natural consequence somebody would have to go home fishless and from all appearance the majority of the crowd constituted that somebody.

The biggest haul of the morning was doubtless made by L. V. Dewitt, who had between 35 and 40. It was suggested that he had bought up the scattering ones and cornered the market thus accounting for his big string. As to the truth of this we know not. Register Rupp fished from five till nine and as he had not yet gotten one bite thought he'd go home—a wise conclusion. And so it was all along the line.

In the Court House.

Col. Woodford, of Illinois, the brilliant temperance lecturer, began a series of meetings in the Court house on Tuesday night. The crowd in attendance was not large but this did not dampen the enthusiasm of the distinguished lecturer who talked for almost an hour appealing to the sympathies of all present in his endeavor to urge all who have not already done so to sign the pledge, and those who have signed to remain steadfast. Mr. J. Linn Harris made a short talk that was listened to with interest by all. There was excellent music by a good choir. The meeting adjourned about half past nine o'clock, to meet again Thursday evening.

ONE by one the charming patriotic stories of our childhood are proven to be myths. Rev Moncure D. Conway, for many years an industrious student of the history of Geo. Washington, has published a magazine article to prove that at Frederick, the great, did not send Washington a sword inscribed 'From the oldest general in the world to the greatest,' or in fact any sword, and further, that there isn't the slightest evidence for believing that Frederick was at all impressed with Washington's greatness. Fie, fie upon you, Mr. Conway, you should have kept the discovery to yourself. The legend was entirely too good to be thus ruthlessly destroyed.

Trout in a Water Pipe.

On Tuesday the water pipes of the Reynolds mansion, now occupied by W. F. Reber, Esq., became clogged up and a plumber was at once sent for to investigate. The pipes were cut where the obstruction seemed to be and there, behold; a trout about six inches long was wedged fast in the pipe. The fish was taken out, the pipe put together again when everything went along as usual. Now the question is: How did that trout get into that water pipe.

They Should be Prosecuted.

It is said that for the past month parties out side of Bellefonte have been catching trout in the mountain streams and then bringing them to Bellefonte secretly and disposing of them to parties who had a more cultivated taste for mountain trout than they had respect for the law. Such persons should be prosecuted in the middle of the law and jerked both ways.

MANY years practice have given C. A Snow & Co., Solicitors of Patents, at Washington, D. C., unsurpassed success in obtaining patents for all classes of inventions. They make a specialty of rejected cases, and have secured the allowance of many patents that had been previously rejected. Their advertisement in another column will be of interest to inventors, patentees, manufacturers and all those who have anything to do with patents.

Law Concerning Newspaper Subscriptions

The decisions of the United States Court on these subjects are interesting:

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered as wishing to renew their subscription

2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals; the publisher may continue to send them until all arrearages are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take the periodicals from the post office to which they are directed, they are responsible until they have settled their bills and ordered them discontinued.

4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publisher, and the papers are sent to the former address, they are held responsible.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take perodicals from the office or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

6. If subscribers pay in advance they are bound to give notice at the end of the time if they do not wish to continue taking it; otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it, and the subscriber will be responsible until an express notice with payment of all arrearages, is sent to the publisher.

Will Breakfast in Bellefonte.

The newspaper correspondents who were sent to Johnstown at the time of the great flood in 1889 endured many hardships, which in one or two cases resulted fatally. To commemorate that troublous period the Johnstown's Correspondent Association, composed only of those who were actually engaged in newspaper work at Johnstown, and made up principally of New York and Philadelphia newspapermen, was organized last year. This year it will observe the anniversary of the flood with a dinner in this city on the evening of May 30, to be followed by a visit to Johnstown the next day, the correspondents breakfasting with General Hastings, at Bellefonte, en route. Members of the association wear a handsome medal of blue and enamel, bearing the figure of a reporter writing on a barrel, while above his head can be seen the telegraph wires that flashed the news of the disaster all over the civilized world.—Philadelphia Record.

The Cleary Trial.

Preparations for the second trial of Charles Cleary are going forward, and the witnesses on both sides are being summoned. The trial begins on Monday, April 27th, and arrangements are being made to secure the services of another attorney to assist District Attorney Brungard in the prosecution. It is now pretty certain that there will be no plea of guilty of murder in the second degree entered, and the trial will take the regular course. There is much interest manifested in the case and much speculation as to the result.

Councilmen Personally Responsible

It has just been discovered that all contracts made by borough councilmen with gas or electric light companies for the lighting of streets of any borough, and to be paid for out of the borough funds, are illegal and cannot be collected off of the borough, the councilmen being personally and individually responsible for all such bills contracted. And, if the tax payers of any borough saw fit to do so, they could bring suit against councilmen and collect all moneys paid out on such contracts. This is not a pleasant situation for borough fathers but it is the law, nevertheless.

DON'T forget, brethren, that it was the much maligned McKinley bill that gave us five cent sugar.

COALING AT ST. THOMAS.

BRAVNY AMAZONS WHO DO THE WORK OF MEN.

Graphic Description of a Phase of West Indu Life—Old Nancy—The Master of Ceremonies—Wild Congo Songs—Eagr Laborers.

A correspondent who recently visited the West Indies writes:

The scene was a strange one to unfamiliar eyes—this coaling of a ship by women. You will witness it at St. Thomas and Kingston, Jamaica, to the best advantage. Scarcely had the Alliance's nose pointed around the fort at the entrance when numerous boats containing the "coal ladies" appeared approaching the coal station, located on an island half a mile from the town. The ship was quickly laid alongside the wharf, and the taking in of fuel commenced. The coal is piled on the shore a distance of 200 feet from the ship, and 150 strapping wenches bore it to the manholes of the bunkers on board. Each of the women carried on her head a coarse splint basket containing 100 pounds of coal. Their raiment was severely simple—a cotton bodice and a scanty skirt drawn up to the knees by a cord around the thighs. Very black were the brawny legs which appeared below the Eve-like drapery, and large and naturally formed were the bare feet with their hard, yellow soles.

Before the work commenced the dusky Amazons stood in a double row in front of the heaps of coal. They grinned like so many monkeys, and their jargon—the strange, mongrel English the Jamaica and Barbadoes negroes utter—poured from their lips a babel of uncouth sounds. Startling were some of the jokes they threw at one another.

"Do you see that woman?" said the agent, as he pointed toward a powerfully built woman with a hard, shining black face and grizzled wool. "That is old Nancy. She is 85 years old and is the foulest mouthed wench in the West Indies. Every shipmaster who has sailed in these waters knows her. She especially interested Anthony Trollope when he came to inspect the islands for the British government. Froude, the historian, noticed her. She can carry 400 baskets of coal a day."

A tall black man armed with a heavy stick was master of ceremonies. When all was ready he called: "Take your baskets, ladies." Each woman seized her basket and turned toward the coal pile. "Ready," was the verbal signal, and quickly the baskets were filled with large lumps and the dust of coal. Afterward there was no cessation of the toil. The women would swing the heavy basket to the top of the head with a single and apparently easy motion, resting the bottom on a small mat of cloth which lay on the wool. Down the wharf they trotted, some bearing the 100 pounds of coal weight without supporting the basket by a hand. The tough "Old Nancy," previously mentioned, drew her pipe from the rags of her bodice, struck a match, ignited it, and smoked after she had swung the basket of coal on her head, and was jogging to the ship. The "ladies" hustled one another in anything but a ladylike manner. The more active ones endeavored to get ahead of others who were in their way as the living stream of workers reached the gangplank. The women are paid for each basket of coal poured into the bunkers. As they pass a small building at the head of the wharf with full baskets a cent is handed to each of the carriers. There are some women who can move 400 baskets a day, or 20 tons of 2,000 pounds. Others carry a less number of baskets, and as the gangplank admits only three carriers abreast, the slow ones hamper the fast workers. The latter endeavor to get ahead. I saw a woman drop almost to her knees on the plank and, with basket on head, seek to crawl under the uplifted arm of a tall wench in front.

The master of ceremonies stood at the side of the gangplank with uplifted stick. When he detected any unfairness he exclaimed in warning tones, "Ladies!" The offense repeated led to a deprecating "Oh, doant do so, dears." Next came, "Oh, Car'line, doant do dat." By this time patience was exhausted, and a sharp call to "Caroline," or to "Miss Clem," or to "you dar, nigger," was followed by a tremendous whack of the stick on the back or legs of the offender. The sound of the blows would rise above the din of the coaling. The victim would grin and the others would jeer at her, but no one appeared to regard the punishment unkindly, or for that matter seriously.

Now and then the women would break down, no doubt, from their ancestors who roamed in the Congo forests. Wild and weird the strange song rose above the bustle of the wharf. When the sun set and the dark tropical night quickly fell on ship and shore, flambeaux—large iron cages set on poles and containing dry wood—were ignited, and the flickering flames cast their radiance over the motley throng. The energy of the women seemed to increase when the beacons were ablaze, and they sang, shouted, swore, and laughed with greater zest than before.

Three hundred and forty tons of coal were placed in the ship between 1 and 7 o'clock, despite heavy rain during the afternoon. And the coal once in, the alliance left the lights on the hillsides of Charlotte-Amelie behind her and proceeded southward toward the equator.

MEMORY'S RIVER.

In Nature's bright blossoms not alway reposes
That strange subtle essence more rare than their bloom,
Which lies in the hearts of carnations and roses—
That unexplained something that men call perfume.

Though modest the flower, yet great is its power
And pregnant with meaning each pistil and leaf,
If only it abides there, if only abides thet,
The fragrance suggestive of love, joy, and grief.

Not always the air that a master composes
Can stir human heart-strings with pleasure or pain,
But strange subtle chords, like the scent of the roses,
Breathe out of some measures, though simple the strain.
And lo! when you hear them, you love them and fear them,
You tremble with aguish, you thrill with delight,
For back of them slumber old dreams without number,
And faces long vanished peer out into sight.

Those dear foolish days when the earth seemed all beauty,
Before you had knowledge enough to be sad—
When youth held no higher ideal of duty
Than just to lilt on through the wold and be glad.
On harmony's river they seemed to flat ever,
With all the sweet fancies that hung round that time:
Life's burdens and troubles turn into air bubbles
And break on the music's swift current of rhyme.

Fair Folly comes back with her spell while you listen
And points to the paths where she led you of old.
You gaze on past sunsets, you see dead stars glisten,
You bathe in life's glory, you swoon in death's cold.
All pains and all pleasures surge up through those measures,
Your heart is wrenched open with earthquakes of sound,
From ashes and embers rise Junes and Decembers,
Lost Islands in fathoms of feeling refound.

Some airs are like outlets of memory's oceans—
They rise in the past and flow into the heart;
And down them float shipwrecks of mighty emotions,
All sea-soaked and storm-tossed and drifting apart—
Their fair timbers battered, their lordly sails tattered,
Their skeleton crew of dead days on their decks—
Then a crash of chords blending, a crisis, an ending—
The music is over, and vanished the wrecks.

A Steam Phaeton.

The problem of making a light steam carriage has been attacked in a promising way, says the Boston Transcript, by M. Serpollet, the French engineer, whose instantaneous steam generator was brought to notice a year or two ago. This generator consists of a strong spiral tube, from which a fine jet of water issues over a fire and instantly expands into steam, explosion being impossible and steam being brought at once to full pressure. Such a boiler is especially adapted for light vehicles. M. Serpollet has been experimenting with it on tricycles, and in his latest effort he employs it on a large phaeton, capable of carrying six persons on its two seats, with a seventh passenger on a stool in front. The carriage is elegant in appearance and very comfortable. The boiler is under the rear seat and the fire box receives fuel automatically from chests on each side, while the water reservoir and the engine are placed under the front seat. The normal horse power is four, which may be instantaneously increased to six. A speed of 15 miles an hour is obtained and grades of one to twelve are easily surmounted with a full load. Water may be carried for a trip of about 20 miles and fuel for 35 miles, and with a full charge of fuel and water the total weight of the carriage is 2,750 pounds. Coke, of which about 30 pounds is consumed per horse power an hour, is preferred for fuel on city streets on account of its smokelessness. This novel vehicle is readily guided through crowded thoroughfares and is permitted on the streets of Paris with no restriction except that the speed shall not exceed 10 miles an hour.

Bees and the Law.

The supreme court of the State of New York has decided that it is a trespass for honey bees to revel in flowers growing upon land not belonging to the owner of the bees. The ruling is just, but the fun will begin when the owner of the land tries to avail himself of this law, and to find out just whose bees are standing on their heads in his flowers or pirating the honey from his own bees in his own buckwheat field. There are difficulties in the way of his getting his wife to stitch his initials in the wings of all bees from his own apiary, as she would mark the corners of his handkerchiefs or the northern zone of his stockings. Nor would it be a pleasant job to use a rubber stamp and mark each one of his honey making insects. The latter would object to this—pointedly. Cattle may be branded, and sad eyed sheep can be frescoed with a brush and paint, but the bee is not formed by nature to wear the monogram of its owner. Neither has nature fitted the bee with a safe handle whereby it could be held while undergoing the process of marking. The most amiable boy would decline holding a bee for such or any other purpose, at least would refuse to hold more than one. Even to catch and insert a healthy bee in a device made for the holding process would entail pleasant results to the catcher. The trespassing of honey bees in New York State will go on in spite of the supreme court, and the busy and buzzing trespassers will go unstamped.—[Pittsburg Bulletin.

Standing Bareheaded at Funerals.

The London Lancet deprecates the practice of remaining bareheaded at funerals. It commends the propriety of cutting short the burial services in cold and inclement weather, and suggests that the hats should be kept on the heads of those in attendance. These suggestions should certainly be approved of, for a funeral ceremony, as at present carried on, involves much risk of contracting grave inflammation of the respiratory organs.

THE STOICAL INDIAN.

No Matter How Cold He May Be He Is Never Heard to Complain.

The Indian in winter is in most instances a sorry, rueful bird. There is this redeeming trait in his character, however: No matter how deep his physical woe, let his blanket be ever so scant and thin and the blizzard ever so knife-like and piercing, he stands it like a stoic. A white man under similar conditions, observes a writer in the Kansas City Star, swears and curses and assails his luck, and assures the word of his resolve to have a vast and comforting change; an Indian undergoes the pinch without a murmur, and will even freeze with no more row about it than a river.

They are prone to do the best they can under the limitations of circumstances. I remember a winter in New Mexico the nights whereof were cold enough even for an iceman. The mornings of each day were by no means sultry, and until 11 o'clock the thermometer was generally content to put in the time somewhere in the vicinity of the 20 degree mark. One morning early, while the frosty air bit like a bulldog, I saw an old Navajo with about enough on him, counting blanket and all, to flag a hand car, very busy in the collection of a heap of splinters, twigs, and chips. Where he had put in the night could not even be guessed at, but he was getting ready for a fire now. He continued his efforts until he had amassed a collection about the size and contour of a bushel basket.

Then some two feet away he started a little fire that a pint of water would have extinguished. This became a crackling success, he wrapped his threadbare blanket about the upper part of his body and over his head, and lay down on his face, with a leg on either side of his fire, said legs being disposed in a sort of parenthesis, so as to bring them fairly within reach of the genial influence. The old buck would "snooze," laid out in this fashion, for about 20 minutes, and then, the fire dying low, would raise himself enough to reach his little store of combustibles with one hand and transfer a small supply to the blaze. Then his slumbrous head would drop, the fire would recover, and affairs go smoothly for another 20 minutes, when the play would be repeated. He got in some six hours in this way very successfully, arising at 12 m. and begging me for his dinner.

Dreams.

Puck could put a girdle round about the world in 40 minutes, but he was slow compared with the most ordinary dream. We survey mankind in China and Peru at the same instant of time, and in the course of one revolving moon we may walk with Plato in the grove of Academe, applaud Luther at the Diet of Worms, set out for holy Palestine with Cœur de Lion, assist Noah in building the ark, and call on the mountains to cover us at the day of judgment.

Many stories are told showing the different count of time. Loud Brougham relates that he dreamed a dream of long continued action during a short doze while a droning counsel was pleading before him. Lord Holland fell asleep while listening to some one reading, dreamed a long dream, and awoke in time to hear the conclusion of a sentence the first words of which were in his ears when he became unconscious. Dr. Abercrombie relates that a gentleman dreamed that he had enlisted for a soldier, joined his regiment, deserted, had been apprehended, carried back, tried, condemned to be shot, and at last led out for execution. After all the usual preparations he awoke with the report, and found that a noise in an adjoining room had both produced the dream and awakened him.

Another dreamed that he had crossed the Atlantic and spent a fortnight in America. In embarking on his return he fell into the sea, and, having woke with the fright, he found that he had not been asleep 10 minutes.—[All the Year Round.

He Had a Dream.

A negro had gone to sleep in the sun on the platform of a railway station, says the Detroit Free Press, and some of the boys put up a job to have some fun with him. A bag of shelled corn was laid across his knees, a second on his stomach, and a third on his head. As the weight didn't waken him, another bag was placed on his stomach, making about 370 pounds resting there. He snored away for three minutes, grew uneasy, began to mutter, and at the end of five threw the sacks off and sat up and looked around in a dazed way.

"Anything wrong, Rube?" asked one of the jokers.

"Fo' de Lawd, sah, but I'ze had de worstest dream dat I eber dreampt! I'ze all in cold blood!"

"What was it?"

"Drempt dat I had sich a sore froat I couldn't swaller, an' de ole woman brought hum two chickens, some yams, an' a 'possum, an' dun cooked an' eat de hull outfit wid me sittin' right dar an' not able to open my mouf! Lawd save me, but didn't I suffer when I saw de las' of dem chickens gwine down her old froat!"

Look Out for Yellow Garters.

The fortunate girl is the one who has a yellow garter given her by the bride of less than a year, according to the New York World. And why is she fortunate? Because it insures for her a laddie who shall be her own true love and her husband ere another twelvemonth has elapsed. The yellow garter must be worn day and night and never removed save when the act of cleanliness requires. During the first six months that it is worn the young woman will see her own true love and become desperately well acquainted with him. The next three months sees them engaged to be married, and the last three months of the year bear a wedding chime in their echoes. Dear, sweet match making young matrons give a yellow garter to all the young girls of their acquaintance whom they wish to see wedded, and then they do all in their power to further the cause by introducing every eligible man of dear Jack's acquaintance.

Athletics and Diet.

Given a man whose life is devoted to a professional pursuit, and who draws chiefly on his mental energies, how shall he get the most and best out of himself, and reach his maximum limit of longevity? There are two seemingly opposite methods now on trial. The one is hearty food with plenty of athletics, the other is moderate diet, avoidance of excitement, and good air. The athletic type of health seeker eats hearty food and brings his digestive and alimentary organs into the fullest activity. In order to absorb it and dispose of the surplus of waste matter in the system he takes active physical exercise every day. In short, he keeps the physical mill hard at work constantly. The seeker of health through abstinence eats moderately, his purpose being to tax his alimentary organs no more than is necessary. If he can keep his organs healthy he does not need so much exercise, since there is less matter in the system to be assimilated and disposed of. He keeps himself as calm as possible and avoids friction, but insists upon fresh air and takes moderate out of door exercise. Which of these two health seekers is pursuing the best course, which will do in the aggregate most work, and which will wear out soonest? Immense attention is devoted to athletics, but far less is said of abstinence and the avoidance of useless friction. The wonderful feats of fasting during the past few years have created intense interest in the medical world, and certainly point to the possibility that the great mass of brain workers overburden their systems by eating too heavily of strong foods that properly belong to men engaged exclusively in bodily labor. Athletics are the natural supplement and corrective of such diet. But is it necessary? Possibly, as in other things, the middle line in these matters is the proper one. But, at all events, the two methods of getting the most out of ourselves are very interesting subjects of contemplation and study.

Hot Milk and Vichy.

"There are a great many men who are overworked and underfed," said an uptown physician; "they think they are too busy to eat lunch at midday, and resort to stimulants as a substitute for food. It only takes a minute to step into a barroom and take a drink. This makes them feel better for a time, but the effect soon passes away and another is taken to get rid of the empty feeling. The habit grows until it takes eight, ten, or more drinks a day to keep them going. Alcoholic stimulants are the worst thing in the world for an empty stomach, finally causing catarrh of the stomach, interfering with the secretions of the liver, destroying the ability to assimilate. When a man comes to me in this condition, the first thing I do is to cut off his whisky, or whatever form of stimulant he is addicted to, and substitute food for it. I can't substitute solid food, because his stomach won't retain it. I must get him to take something that it will. This is where hot milk and vichy comes in. Cold milk is too harsh. It shocks his weakened stomach. Hence I give it to him hot. Vichy lightens and livens it; makes it more easily digested. I tell him to take a glass, two-thirds milk, one-third vichy, twice a day; to order it over a bar, anywhere he can get it, and to let whisky and all stimulants severely alone. If he obeys the orders I will cure him and save his life.

"A good many men among my own patients, fast growing permaturely old, and bringing upon themselves a multitude of ills by the steady and excessive use of alcoholic stimulants instead of the nutritious food which they should take, have been reclaimed by the use of hot milk and vichy. If you find you are losing your appetite for food and correspondingly gaining that for alcoholic stimulants, try it. It will do you good."—[New York Sun.

Athletics and Sensualism.

"I have given up all interest," said an intelligent woman recently, "in the movement for the so called physical culture of women. It is not that I do not believe most heartily in the full and symmetrical development of the body powers, but the whole cult is being perverted to sensualism. The beauty teachers are devoting themselves, not to wholesome training for health, but to making 'visions of loveliness,' with direct regard to their effect on the other sex, and after as frank methods as could ever have been employed in fitting Circassians for the harem. A woman's first interest in physical culture is to fill out her neck so that she may look better in a decolette gown. It's all in a line with the manicure business which is making very ornamental but worse than useless hands! It all goes with our heaps of cushions and shaded lights and refinement of perfumes. It's the development of curves and the study of poses and the absolute deification of dainty sensualism. It would be a good plan to let in on the business a little wholesome sunshine and fresh air."

Bill Nye's Silk Hat.

The honest truth is that since William Edgar Nye, known familiarly as Bill Nye, took up his residence in Staten Island and mingled frely with the New Yorkers, he has become one of the best dressed men in the East, outside of the ranks of the upper swelldom. When he was postmaster in the far West he never knew the effete use of suspenders, and linen collars and a boiled shirt were curiosities. Imagine how he looked then and gaze upon the present picture, viz: a silk hat, always brightly polished, a high, standing collar, stayed and ridered to keep from breaking down if any of his old friends should happen to weep upon his neck, an elegant suit of navy blue broadcloth and patent leather shoes. The only thing left of the original Laramie Boomerang Nye is the broad expanse of forehead chasing over his head when he lifts his hat. He met an old friend recently, who did not recognize him until he pulled off his hat and exposed his bald head. It is Nye's humor to caparison himself in fine raiment, and his friends like him none the less for it.

SCIENTIFIC AND USEFUL.

Electric elevators are the latest.

A machine has recently been invented making shoestrings out of paper.

A petroleum motor tricycle has been invented that will run 40 miles on one gallon of oil.

The Germans seem to be leading the world in making discoveries in medicine. Somnal is the name of a new hypnotic recently discovered by a Berlin physician. Its effects are less depressing than those of chloral.

It is said that there is an element in the common pineapple similar to pepsine, and of such remarkable strength that the juice of a single apple will digest 10 pounds of beef. It is further stated that the juice of the fruit is a very active solvent of the membrane found in diphtheria.

A Swedish engineer has invented a novel method of blasting by electricity. He employs a volta arc produced between two carbon rods placed parallel. When the arc is moved close to the spot where blasting is to be effected an intense local heat is created, followed by expansion, which has the effect of splitting the rock.

Dr. James S. Kelly, a New York physician, who has been in Berlin studying Dr. Koch's treatment, has returned home a convert to the system, but strong in the belief that the lymph is dangerous in inexperienced hands. He says: "I consider that the lymph, to the medical world, is what dynamite is to the engineer."

A large steel sailing vessel has recently been built in Norway among whose fittings is a patent oil distributer, by which oil can be thrown upon the waves during severe storms. Within the vessel there is an iron reservoir from which a pipe extends alongside of the vessel near the water line and as close to the bow as possible. A valve in the pipe close to the reservoir regulates the distribution of the oil. This is probably the first case in which provision for throwing oil upon the waves has been made from the first designing and building of a vessel.—[Railway Review.

Enormous piles of bones are collected at the railroad stations on the plains. At some points they are 10 or 15 feet high, and cover acres of ground. From the thigh bones of cattle are made knife and parasol handles, fan sticks, and the handles of tooth and hair brushes, while all the small bones are boiled and then burned for lamp black. The matter extracted by boiling is used to make glue, and much of the so called "bear's grease" used in barbers' shops is made out of the marrow and fat of these bones. The bone black is used by sugar refiners to purify sugar, and commands a good price. The popular idea that bones are ground up as a fertilizer is erroneous. They are too valuable for that.—[New York Tribune.

A proposal is now under consideration for the prevention of the smoke and fog plague by which London is from time to time afflicted. The proposed remedy is to turn a large portion of the coal supply of the Yorkshire, Staffordshire, and South Wales coal fields into gas and convey it by pipes to London; where its use will be regulated somewhat after the same manner as that adopted in Pittsburg with natural gas. Such an abundant supply of cheap fuel would mean a saving to the city of over $100,000,000 annually, besides transforming the city of smoke and fog into one of the healthiest places in the world.

A great feature in metal working, according to the American Manufacturer, was recently accomplished at the Superior Mill at Allegheny, Pa. The feat consists of rolling a strip of steel for a spring 6 inches wide, ¼ of an inch thick, and 310 feet long. The work was successfully performed and the spring properly tempered at the first effort. That establishment has since received a large order for such springs, which are designed to enter into the construction of a new car motor, for which a great demand is anticipated. The order had previously been tendered to all the large English and continental works of Europe, none of which would undertake to do it.

The railway tunnel under the St. Clair River, between Michigan and Canada, was formed by driving an iron cylinder into the earth under the river bed and pushing it forward as fast as the excavated earth could be removed. A three mile tunnel has been constructed in London on a similar plan, which is said to have cost less and to have been finished in less time than would have been required by the old methods. And now comes a project to unite Newark and New York by a 15 mile tunnel, in which electricity is to be the sole motive power. Tunnels will undoubtedly play a prominent part in the systems of transportation in all large cities.

One of the latest applications of electricity to dentistry has been exhibited in England in the shape of an apparatus destined to effect a revolution in certain kinds of work, called the dental vibrator. By means of this most simple apparatus it is said that the extraction of teeth is rendered actually as well as nominally painless. The principle of the operation is that a rapidly interrupted current is allowed to pass through the body of the patient, who grasps a handle in each hand, while a third connection is made to the forceps, so that a shunt of the current passes through the teeth. There is little doubt that this method of extraction will supersede extractions under the anæsthetics hitherto used.

Asylum for Mothers in Law.

A wealthy Austrian woman has just founded in Vienna an asylum for mothers in law. The building, not yet completed, is to be big enough to accommodate 500 guests, and the institution will serve as a pleasant refuge for ladies whose company is not agreeable to the ungrateful men who have walked off with their daughters. More than one half of the number of apartments in the asylum have already been bespoken. A German professor has written a brochure showing that inability to agree with one's mother in law is a certain proof of intellectual progress.—[Chicago News.

HAD NO CHANCE.

The Professor's Interesting Discourse Was Rather Too Much for the Clock.

The professor was making one of his occasional calls.

"I am pleased to find, Miss Laura," he was saying, "that you appear to take an interest in this subject of the architecture of the middle ages. It has always had a strong fascination for me. I confess, however, that of late I have been studying with more interest, if possible, the problem of emigration. Has it not occurred to you that there is need of a deeper insight into this great question?"

"Why, yes, professor," replied the young lady, "I suppose so, but——"

"I knew it could not fail to present itself to your mind, Miss Laura, as one of the most absorbing of topics. You have seen, I dare say, the report read by Dr. William Farr before the London Statistical Society of 1853, in which he gave several very interesting tables showing the value of agricultural laborers' wages and the necessary cost of their maintenance?"

"Why, no, professor, but——"

"But you are familiar, of course, with the general results of his investigations. Just so. They were published, as you may remember, in all the leading scientific and industrial journals. More recently Dr. Becker, chief of the German statistical office, estimated the average wages of the German emigrant and the average margin of living, which he finds to be much closer than among the English emigrants. Do you recall his exact figures?"

"Why, professor——"

"But of course you do, or at least you are familiar with his conclusions. Take, too, the question of Chinese immigration. The testimony collected by the House committee on education and labor in 1878—or was it in 1879?"

"I am sure, professor, I——"

"You are correct, Miss Laura. The testimony was collected in 1878 and the report presented in 1879. You remember the protracted debates that followed. In the Senate there was only one man who stood up for the natural right of a human being to emigrate wheresoever he chose, regardless of race prejudice. It was—let me think a moment. Do you remember what Senator it was?"

"Why, professor——"

"Ah! I remember. It was Senator Hamlin, of Maine, as you were about to remark, Miss Laura; it was Senator Hamlin. Mr. Sargent, of California—ever meet Mr. Sargent?"

Why——"

"Genial and lovable soul, Miss Laura. Full of interesting facts and figures. But bless me! I had no idea it was getting so late. Did not the clock strike 10 a moment ago?"

"I think it tried to strike, professor," said Miss Kajones wearily, "but it gave it up."—[Chicago Tribune.

NO MORE RUNAWAY HORSES.

A Chicagoan Who Stops or Starts His Team by Electricity.

A carriage drawn by a pair of spirited horses, that dashed through St. Clair street, Chicago, recently, at a furious gallop, made pedestrians halt in anxiety for the welfare of the one passenger who sat in the vehicle. No driver was on the box, and the lines hung slack on the horses. A block had been traversed when, for no apparent cause, the plunging horses threw themselves on their haunches and came to a sudden standstill. The man inside opened the carriage door, stepped out with a smile on his face, and said: "Don't you think it works pretty well?"

It was a liveryman who claims to have invented a "press the button" electrical contrivance by which a runaway team may be stopped instantly. Beneath the driver's box a two volt dry battery is located, in the top of which are inserted three copper pegs that project from the ends of the lines. Running inside the lines are copper wires forming a circuit through the horses' noses by small polished balls of aluminum which press lightly against the inner sides of the nostrils. The circuit is opened and closed by means of two buttons, one of which can be operated by the driver. Should he be thrown from his seat before he can press the button, another button located beneath the seat inside the carriage can be operated by the occupant.

In addition to his device for stopping runaway teams the inventor has made an electrical stimulator for starting lazy or balky horses and giving them "style." This is operated through the lines also, the current being applied to the horses' sides by copper plates in the back band.

Wouldn't Come of His Own Accord.

Jim Webster, a colored transgressor, was arraigned before a magistrate, who said to him: "I'll let you go this time, as the evidence against you is not very conclusive to my mind." "Thank you, sah; thank you kindly. I wishes all de odder magistrates would treat me like you does. Ye'r' a gennerman, sah." "But don't come here again, or I'll have to be severe with you." "You may be sure I am' gwinter to come heah no moah. I didn't come dis time. Hit's de perliceman what fotches me ebery time. Ef you waits till I comes here all by myself, you will be a heap older dan Methusalum."

About Cutlery.

Except for cheap trade, German cutlery does not sell well. The Germans make knives of fine polish but deficient in steel, temper, and other important qualities. For fine pocket goods English makes continue to have the preference. In the matter of table cutlery, American goods are equal to the best.

A dispatch from Thomasville, Ga., says: "George Beverly is a great hunter. He never goes out without bagging a large number of quail, and he goes often. While hunting this week with Mr. Belcher a frightened quail flew against his gun and killed itself."

A Lost Work of Aristotle Recovered.

The recovery of the almost complete text of the treatise on the constitution of Athens, attributed by all the ancient authorities to quote it to Aristotle, is a literary event of the rarest and most interesting kind. There has been nothing of like importance in its way since the remarkable discovery of five books of the annals of Tacitus in the library of a German monastery in the sixteenth century. Aristotle's great work on "Politics," still extant, was based, not on theory, but on a study of the constitutions in existence in his day. Unlike the French revolutionists of a century ago, Aristotle was not content to evolve theoretical political principles out of his own head. He preferred a basis tested by actual human experience. He accordingly, before taking his great work in hand, drew up himself, or had drawn up by others under his direction, careful descriptions of the institutions of 158 different states, most of them Greek, but some of them "barbarian," the Carthaginians and the Brahmins of India being included in his list.

The treatise on the constitution of Athens, now recovered in a remarkable manner by the British Museum after being lost for over a thousand years, is supposed to have been the first and most important, as well as the fullest in the collection. That it is a genuine work of the Stagirite is indicated partly by the character of the manuscript, partly by the circumstances of its finding, and in part by the text. Papyrus rolls are made by laying strips of material derived from the papyrus plant, one across another at right angles, so that on one side of the shed the fibers run horizontally and on the other perpendicularly. The side used first by a writer—called the recto—is the side on which the fibers run horizontally, as on that side the pen runs easily, because it runs with the grain. The recto of the newly discovered manuscript is occupied with the accounts—the receipts and expenditures—of the bailiff of a private estate in Egypt, dated month by month, in the eleventh year of the Emperor Vespasian. This was the first use to which the papyrus was put.

Subsequently—somewhere about the end of the first century after Christ—the text of Aristotle's treatise was written on the other side of the papyrus in four distinct hands. That the accounts and part at least of the text were written by the same hand is indicated by the fact that the abbreviations used in the one are used also in the other, and by the further fact that a peculiar formation of certain letters appears in both. When the accounts had been "passed" by the employer as "correct" the bailiff, it appears, being a thrifty person, utilized the paper they were written on for his own literary delectation. Further proof of the genuineness of the manuscript is to be had in the fact that when the British Museum acquired it in Egypt neither the seller nor the buyer had any idea of its nature. It was bought along with a lot of other rolls whose character remained to be determined by subsequent inspection. Now that the latter have been deciphered, their contents fortify, it is stated, the presumption of the genuiness of the treatise.

An important part of the evidence that it is really Aristotle's work is the substantially exact correspondence of its language with the quotations made from the constitution of Athens by writers of antiquity. Of the 91 fragments attributed by scholars with more or less probability to the treatise on the Athenian constitution, some 86 of which probably really refer to it, as many as 78, says the London Times, are found in the manuscript in its present condition. A part of the opening chapters and part of the closing chapters are in a badly mutilated condition or wanting. Taking account of this circumstance it is held that, with two possible exceptions, all the quotations made by ancient writers are satisfactorily verified. At Berlin there are two scraps of papyrus containing fragments of passages which have been referred by some German scholars to the treatise in question. It is interesting to note that both passages are found in the British Museum's papyrus.

The museum has thus, it appears, had the luck of acquiring for a song and by an accident one of the oldest Greek manuscripts in the world. Happily there is promise in the circumstances of its finding that other discoveries of like interest may be made by and by. Egyptian graves and ruined buildings have possibly still richer treasures in reserve. The discovery of manuscripts of classical Greek authors written on papyrus began but 50 years ago. In that time four or five nearly complete orations of the great Athenian orator, Hyperides, have been recovered; also fragments of Euripides and of Alcman. There have also been obtained besides early copies of portions of Homer, Thucydides, Plato, Demosthenes, Isocrates, and others. The work of Aristotle, just recovered, does not, of course, radically alter the main lines of Greek history as recited by Herodotus and Thucydides, but it throws new light on the early constitutional history of Athens, and must change our point of view as to certain details.

Some new information is given as to the part Themistocles took in overthrowing the Areopagus—information that adds to his reputation as a shifty and unscrupulous politician. Draco and Solon are placed in a new light, and the baneful effect of the methods of popular government introduced by Pericles are traced in a most striking manner. Aristotle evidently thinks less of Pericles than Thucydides did. In fact, he expresses the opinion that the decline of Athens began in Pericles's time, and became rapid as soon as his guiding hand was removed.—[Baltimore Sun.

BY TELEGRAPH!

SITUATION IN THE COKE REGION.

MT. PLEASANT, April 9.—The coke situation was devoid of excitement yesterday. Considerable surprise was occasioned by the arrival of Division Commander Snowden and his staff. In company with Generals McClelland and Wiley General Snowden visited the various works, and personally looked over the field. Upon his reports will depend the withdrawal of the troops.

Notices of ejectment were placed in the constable's hands to-day. The ten days' notice to quit will be served to-morrow on the strikers who are occupying the company houses. Every one who will not work will be forced to seek a residence elsewhere. There is no doubt that the operators are preparing to import men and are anxious to get possession of their houses. The operators are anxious to have the militia remain until after the evictions and are trying to impress upon General Snowden the absolute necessity of the guards at that time.

There is talk of forming a volunteer regiment of national guardsman to take the places of the state troops when they are withdrawn. This was done during the riots of 1877, the men remaining on duty three months. All the expenses would be paid by the company instead of by the state. Thirty more men applied and were given work at Morewood to-day. Making 125 now drawing pay.

HARRISBURG, April 9.—Major General Snowden, division commander, who is in the coke region, yesterday sent a telegram to Governor Pattison stating that everything was quiet and in good shape. The last dispatch from General Wiley, after referring to the resumption of work in sections of the district, concluded as follows: "It is expected that this week will see the strike completely broken up and all works in operation."

Susan Dickinson Will Sue Dr. Seward.

WILKESBARRE, April 10—There was considerable indignation expressed in and about the town of Pittston to-day when the story published this morning concerning the conduct of Anna Dickinson and the alleged persecution of the afflicted woman by her sister, Miss Susan, was read. This evening Miss Susan Dickinson said to the Associated Press representative that she did not deem it necessary to make any denial of the story at present. She was willing to leave it to her friends in Pittston and neighboring towns where she was known whether or not she had in any way ill-treated her sister and for the time being she would have nothing further to say. She had a conference to-day with her attorney, the result of which was a decision to at once commence legal proceedings against Dr. Seward under whose care Anna was placed by her. Dr. Seward was notified this afternoon by telegraph that he would be held in damages for the injury he had done to Anna and also on malicious libel against Miss Susan.

A BIG FLOOD.

The only thing that will wet a man who wears a "Fish Brand Slicker" is a flood; but even then he must be under water. This statement may seem strong, but a coat that will stand a two days' storm without leaking, and will not rip or tear, is sure to fill the bill. The additional advantage is that it costs less and wears longer than any other waterproof coat. Have you one? If not, why do you wait until it rains? Sold everywhere. Buy it now. It is a great mistake to wait until it rains to buy a waterproof coat. The time to buy is when the dealer has a clean, fresh stock. Be sure the coat is stamped with the "Fish Brand" Trade Mark, and you will get the best waterproof coat ever made. Don't accept any inferior coat when you can have the "Fish Brand Slicker" delivered without extra cost. Particulars and illustrated catalogue free.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

BELVERSON, Pa., Nov. 27, '90.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.:

Gents—I would like to make known to those who are almost persuaded to use Kendall's Spavin Cure the fact that I think it is a most excellent Liniment. I have used it on a Blood Spavin. The horse went on three legs for three years when I commenced to use your Kendall's Spavin Cure. I used ten bottles on the horse and have worked him for three years since and has not been lame.

Yours truly, WM. A. CURL.

GERMANTOWN, N. Y., Nov. 2, 1889.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vt.

Gents: In praise of Kendall's Spavin Cure I will say, that a year ago I had a valuable young horse become very lame, hock enlarged and swollen. The horsemen about here (we have no Veterinary Surgeon here) pronounced his lameness Blood Spavin or Thoroughpin, they all told me there was no cure for it, he became about useless, and I considered him almost worthless. A friend told me of the merits of your Kendall's Spavin Cure, so I bought a bottle, and I could see very plainly great improvements immediately from its use, and before the bottle was used up I was satisfied that it was doing him a great deal of good. I bought a second bottle, and before it was used up my horse was cured and has been in the team doing heavy work all the season since last April, showing no more signs of it. I consider your Kendall's Spavin Cure a valuable medicine, and it should be in every stable in the land. Respectfully yours, EUGENE DEWITT.

It was one of General Sherman's daughters, the eldest, who refused to dance with the Russian crown prince when he made his tour of the United States. Her refusal raised a cloud of social dust at the time, but she explained it on the ground that out of deference to her mother's wishes she had decided not to waltz at all.

Among the three star heroes that one by one are silently striking their tents and moving off forever is a soldier not often mentioned. It is General Pleasanton. In Memory of Deceased Brother.

At a regular meeting of Blanchard Lodge, No 427, I. O. O. F., held at Blanchard, Pa., April 11, 1891, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted.

WHEREAS, It has pleased God, his all-wise providence, to remove from our number our worthy brother P. G., Charles A. Courter, by death; therefore be it

Resolved, That we accept the dispensation with sorrowful hearts and recognize in his death that we must bow in reverence to the will of our Heavenly Father who doeth all things well.

Resolved, That in the death of our brother we lose a member respected by us all; the community a valuable and useful citizen and the family a worthy brother.

Resolved, That we tender our sympathies to friends of the deceased upon whom the affliction falls most heavily and will ever pray that His abundant mercy be vouchsafed to them.

Resolved, That in remembrance of our departed brother we drape our charter and lodge room in mourning for a space of thirty days.

Resolved, That these resolutions be printed in the county papers and also a copy be presented to the family of the deceased.

NEW POLAR EXPEDITION.

THE DANGEROUS EFFORT TO BE TRIED AGAIN.

A Norwegian Explorer Who Will Try to Get There in Five Years—Uncle Sam Will Also Make Another Effort—An Overland Route.

The efforts to discover the North Pole will be abandoned only when this real or imaginary point is discovered. For 200 years brave and adventurous souls have sacrificed comfort, health, and life itself in the quest of this elusive spot, only to be met with disaster and utter failure. And yet the spirit of enterprise, the desire for exploration, are not subdued. The determination to penetrate this unknown place is as stubborn and persistent as if danger and privation and death had not attended all former attempts. Nothing in previous expeditions holds out any prospect of success; the survivors of those other journeys are yet alive to tell the harrowing tale of the awful desolation of that desert of ice and snow, but they can not daunt the hardy and adventurous men who still cherish the hope of final success.

Two expeditions for this purpose are now in the midst of preparations, buoyant with hope, confident of success, willing to hazard all risks. One of these will start from Norway in June, under the command of Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, a distinguished Norwegian explorer. He is preparing for an absence of five years. His ship will weigh 170 tons and will be so constructed that when struck by great masses of ice it will be forced out of the water to the top of the mass. It will be manned by a crew of eight men and fully equipped for the long journey. Dr. Nansen will sail straight through Bering Strait into the Arctic Ocean, and then follow the current. He believes that a current runs from the coast of Siberia into an open polar sea. His reason for this belief is that after the ill fated Jeannette was abandoned on the north Bering coast, near the mouth of the river Lena, articles believed to belong to this ship were picked up on the west coast of Greenland. Dr. Nansen's theory is that they got into this Siberian current, were carried toward the pole, and then down through Baffin's Bay to the western shores of Greenland. It will be remembered that various scientific societies in Europe have discouraged Dr. Nansen's theories, but he will proceed with his expedition, and we shall hear of him no more for five years, if ever.

The second expedition is of a very different nature. It is under the direction of Engineer Robert E. Peary, of the United States Navy, who has obtained leave of absence for 18 months, commencing May 1. He will conduct his expedition overland through Greenland in a northeasterly direction. Three or four men will comprise the party, and they will travel with dogs and sledges. Mr. Peary has previously explored in Greenland, and he is quite certain that these great ice plateaus form the safest and surest route to the North Pole. He feels sure that he will reach the northern limits of the land and find a sea of solid ice, upon which he will continue to travel. His plan meets the approval of Engineer Melville and other Arctic explorers. The cost of this expedition will be borne by geographical and scientific societies. In the latter case it will not be impossible to follow the party up with a rescuing expedition, as has been necessary in all previous attempts at explorations.

What lies in that impenetrable beyond is for the imagination alone to depict. It may be only an endless expanse of ice and snow, with nothing to repay the tremendous exertion of finding it except the satisfaction of a universal curiosity. But there has always existed a vision of an open sea, an equable climate, vegetation, and it has even been dreamed that a race of people might live in this wonderland. And restless, daring, inquiring humanity will continue its research to the end of time, or until all the mystery is solved.

Teaching Your Dog.

The easiest trick to teach a dog is jumping. First put the learner into a corner, and make a bar of a stick—a cane will answer the purpose—so that he can not get out of the corner except by jumping over it. Do this until he jumps over the stick without hesitation, when you may gradually raise the height of the bar any required distance from the floor. After the trick has been learned in the corner, it may be tried in the center of the room. Later on you may make a hoop of your arms and teach your pupil to jump through it, and after a while a real hoop. Possibly one that is covered with tissue paper may be substituted with good results.

Another easy trick is sitting up. As in the first trick, begin in a corner. Place the pupil in a sitting pose, so that his back finds support against the walls, and by tapping him lightly under the chin force him to sit up. After some practice he can do this without much effort. Now accustom him to sit up without any back support. It is harder to make a dog stand erect than to do either of the two tricks just described. As before, it should be begun in the corner. If the learner tries to come down upon all fours before his lesson is over tap his chin and the bottom of his forepaws with the whip.

When he can stand erect he should be taught to walk. This is done by holding out a piece of meat or some dainty morsel on a level with his mouth, and then slowly backing away from him so as to induce him to follow. After he has walked a few steps tell him to stand on his four feet and give him the bait that you have encouraged him with.

Let me say here that you should never let your dog come to the end of any trick without commanding him to do so. It should never be left to a dog's own judgment to bring a performance to a close. You should be the master of ceremonies all the way through—at the end as well as at the beginning of the show. Never exercise your pupil for too long a time at a stretch. You may weary him and make him dread the lesson hour.—[Dr. Glover, in Harper's Young People.

The "Orphic" Element in Poetry.

Among the happiest tributes ever paid by one son of song to another was that bestowed on Wordsworth by Matthew Arnold, in the memorable lines where he says of him—

He was a priest to us all
Of the wonder and bloom of the world,
Which we saw with his eyes and were glad.

And truly this is not only happy as an ascription of homage to the individual poet, but, as a description, it is the most felicitous we know, of what constitutes, in the true sense, the poet by preeminence. It is a crystallizing in words of the supreme quality distinguishing the "Dii Majores" of the lyre—that quality, without which other endowments, such as wealth of fresh imagery, music of expression, and power to seize and portray characters and feelings, although most precious as auxiliaries, will yet fail, apart from a diviner gift, to reach the true aureole of the Muse.

In the case of the great Pan of the Lakes, it was this power, frequently yet only fitfully manifested even by him, of what we are inclined to call "Orphic song," that has made the name of Wordsworth the greatest in English literature since Milton, and one of the Three Mighties in the field of English as distinguished from Scottish poetry. In conversation on one occasion with H. Crabb Robinson, Wordsworth came nearest to a revelation of the secret of this mystic power—the occasion, namely, when he let fall the observation as to how common things can be glorified, in the words, "The imagination must irradiate an object with that infinity without which there is no poetry." This, when interpreted, must mean that only when an object is linked on to, and lit up in the light of, the infinite and the eternal, is there any radiance on the horizon, or any vista of hope or joy encircling it beyond this visible diurnal sphere.

It is this "Orphic" element, characterizing the great Hierophant of Nature in his higher moods, that has been transfused, as is now well known, from him and his twin brother Coleridge, through Keats and Shelley and Tennyson, into the main stream of our English verse during the present century; and wherever this element can not be found, there we may feel sure there is no true title to the supreme dignity of poetry, and we look in vain for the inspiration and the poet's dream—

The light that never was on sea or land.

Through the might of this mystic power Wordsworth was enabled to irradiate the common sights and sounds of nature so largely with the light of eternal beauty, and to reveal to us, as none ever did before him with such potency, the glory of the visible world as the symbol of a divine and invisible omnipresence. Hence to him the radiance of mystery surrounding the meanest flower that blows, and the inscrutable depths of feeling in the human heart, which is dowered to be the interpreter of that mystery. All this vision, as Arnold expresses it, of the "wonder and bloom of the world," he taught us to see with his eyes as a fresh revelation, for the world was through this new Orpheus touched with a new emotion, the most fruitful and potential in the domain of poesy known to this latter age and time.

Perhaps the really most notable trophy of this Orphic spell as exerted by Wordsworth is the titanic muse of Lord Byron. That proud and strong spirit long resisted, but in the end succumbed, while snorting scorn and indignation, to drink deep finally of the love of nature as distilled from Wordsworth, and imbibed through the medium of Shelley, so that in the later cantos of "Childe Harold" he too has learned the mystic mood, and, as he elsewhere expresses it, can find it joy,

To bend upon the mountains high
The quiet of a loving eye.

Thus Byron, the Titanic, has grown Orphic, and become a priest of "the wonder and bloom of the world."—[Blackwood's Magazine.

When Before the Tamers.

If you are short and stout don't ask the poor artist to make a picture of you full length. He will if you insist, but he knows he is doing a great wrong thereby. Nothing is so graceful and pleasing in a picture of a stout lady as a sitting half length, the figure so turned as to hide the too too stoutness. Again, if you are slim and angular, do not for an instant forget that a full length will make you appear more slim and angular. Then the pretty bust picture is your only hope, and you should insist on having none other. If a gentleman has a very long neck, no matter how nicely he looks in a high collar, his picture—if taken in such a high affair—would look grotesque. A short neck and high collar, a long neck and low turned down collar by all means. No loud stripes, no great checks, no striking figures should be worn in a photograph. One thing bear in mind when you visit the studio—bring along your home expression. Don't spend two days before you come to the studio practicing poses and different expressions before your mirror; and, lastly, give the photographer the benefit of exercising his artistic and professional ability.—[Ladies' Home Journal.

Tobacco Frauds.

There are honest cigar dealers who admit that it is now impossible for them to certify to the genuineness of all their stock. "It has lately been found out," said one of them, "that Chinese tobacco raised in China is shipped to Cuba, where it is made into cigars that are exported and sold as genuine Havanas, made from the Cuban leaf. In Cuba there are 50,000 Chinamen, and many of them are in the cigar business, getting invoices of Chinese tobacco from Hong Kong, which is marketed as the product of Cuba. The Chinese stuff is cheap, but it sells high when made into cigars branded choice Havana. The business is a new one, but it is growing, and any quantity of Chinese leaf, tainted with opium, can be had from Hong Kong by the cargo. We ought to be able to raise in the Southern States of this country, while speaking of Connecticut as a tobacco State, plenty of good American tobacco for American cigar smokers.

IS THERE A GOD?

HISTORICAL PROOF THAT CAN NOT BE REFUTED.

So Says Max Muller, the Great German Scientist—What History Teaches—An Exceedingly Good Argument on a Great Subject.

To my mind the historical proof of the existence of God, which is supplied us by the history of the religions of the world, has never been refuted; and can not be refuted. It forms the foundation of all other proofs, call them cosmological, ontological, or teleological; or, rather, it absorbs them all, and makes them all superfluous. There are those who declare that they require no proof at all for the existence of a Supreme Being, or, if they did, that they would find it in revelation. Suppose they wanted no proof themselves, would they really not care at all to know how the human race, and how they themselves, came in possession of what, I suppose, they value as their most precious inheritance? Do they really think that in this case an examination of the ancient title deeds might safely be dispensed with, while with regard to much less precious holdings it is considered a plain duty to guard these documents with the greatest care? An appeal to revelation is of no avail in deciding questions of this kind.

The history of religions teaches us that the same appeal to a special revelation is made, not only by Christianity, but by the defenders of Brahmanism, of Zoroastrianism, and of Mohammedanism, and where is the tribunal to adjudicate on the conflicting appeals of these and other claimants? The believer in the Vedas is as thoroughly convinced of the superhuman origin of his ancient hymns as the Zoroastrian of that of the Gathas and the Mohammedan of that of the Surahs; and the subtle arguments by which each, but more particularly the Brahman, supports his claims, would put some of our ablest casuists to shame. The followers of every one of these religions declare their belief in the revealed character of their own religion, never in that of any other religion. Many persons believe, and believe honestly, in visions they have had themselves, never in the visions claimed by other people. We may appeal to revelation in the court of our own conscience, but, before the court of universal appeal, we require different proofs for the faith that is in us.

Our belief in God as the author of all that exists, whether we call him father, or creator, or supporter of the world, has its deepest, its only living roots in that ancient, universal stratum of thought which postulated an agent in the sky, the sun, the fire, and the storm wind; which was not satisfied with the mere play of appearances in nature, but yearned to know what it was that appeared; which felt the limits of the finite in all its sensuous perceptions, and in feeling the limits, felt at the same time the presence of something that was beyond those limits. This dissatisfaction with the finite, this struggle after the non finite, this search for an agent for every act, of a mover for every movement, whatever shape it took, whatever name it claimed, forms the primitive and indestructible foundation of man's faith in God. If it is taken away, people may indeed have dogma, and may have creeds, but they can not have their own ineradicable conviction that there is and that there must be a God. Dogma can supply no argument against atheism. Dogma is what my excellent colleague at Edinburgh, Mr. Hutchison Stirling, has very truly called mere Vorstellung which requires for its philosophical foundation the Begriff. But that Begriff has a history, and it is this history of the Begriff which to my mind is the true, because unanswerable, answer to all atheism.

I should go so far as to say that the history of religion is the best proof of religion, just as the growth of the oak tree is the best proof of the oak tree. There may be excrescences, there may be dead leaves, there may be broken branches, but the oak tree is there, once for all, whether in the sacred groves of Germany, or at Donona, or in the Himalayan forests. It is there, not by our own will, but by itself, or by a higher will. There may be corruptions, there may be antiquated formulas, there may be sacred writings flung to the wind, but religion is there, once for all, in all its various representations. You can as little sweep away the oak tree with all its millions of seeds from the face of the earth as you can eradicate religion from the human heart. The history of religion teaches us that the one everlasting conviction on which the whole of natural religion has been built from the beginning of the world is true. That is the conviction that there is an infinite behind the finite, that there is an agent behind all acts, there is a God in nature.—[Professor F. Max Muller, in the Christian World.

Bisons' Heads.

You can buy a few bisons' heads in the curio stores on the plains for from $150 to $200. Here in New York they can be got for less, and will continue to be cheaper as long as any old buffalo robes that now exist continue to resist the moths. This is because a taxidermist who can not make a splendid bison's head with a piece of fur or block of wood and a pair of horns is not considered an adept in his profession. If the head of any rare animal is asked for in the proper quarters the customer will be told that there are no such heads [illegible] hunts, but that if he will wait one can be procured from some other city. If he does the chances are ten to one that it will be carved out of wood, [illegible] the right fur, fitted with [illegible] delivered. The imitations of [illegible] of wild beasts [illegible] are masterful —[New York Sun.

We will [illegible] modern [illegible] and loyalty follow it; but, says Wilhelm, there remains a still [illegible] higher face—the eternal [illegible] of man. To me the crown of scientific will be to open the way for a splendid theology, for simpler and diviner [illegible]

BEAUTY OF FORM.

The Charm of Proportion in Both Man and Woman.

Beauty of the human form is to-day exactly what it was in ancient Greece; it is the same through all the centuries, however blind we are to its characteristics through ignorance. The census of ages is a true verdict, and classic forms become safe models. Greek sculpture was wrought when the body received its highest cultivation, and was so beautiful as to be called divine.

This sculpture should be carefully and continuously studied, as well as pictures of good nude figures. They are to be made familiar, that one may learn why they are good, why they deserve admiration. Most people fancy that they admire these classic models, but it must be in imagination only, else why should they allow themselves to exemplify false standards of form, and positively distort their own God given bodies?

Searching for the highest standards of human form, we discover that manly beauty and womanly beauty differ essentially. It is agreed that the type of manly proportions includes a comparatively large head, wide shoulders, rather square, a torso tapering to a contracted pelvis; while the whole may be 7 1-2 heads in height, or an additional half head added to the length of the legs, giving a particularly elegant figure.

On the other hand, fine proportions for a woman are a small head, shoulders rather sloping and narrow, the torso full and widest at the hips; while the front line from the sternum over the abdomen should show first a gentle, and then a full outward curve.

The conventional figure of the day is at variance with this type. Every effort is made to imitate masculine characteristics. The shoulders are thrust up high and square, or made to appear so, the torso is made to taper in, and everything under heaven is done to make the waist look small. The front line is forced to take an inward curve below the bust, and the side lines to form an awkward angle, in the hollow of which voluminous skirts are hung.

One should study sculpture with the new knowledge of these proportions most thoughtfully, till the rhythm of the lines has fastened itself upon the memory. Studying the pictures of the best artists of every age, we shall find these principles everywhere demonstrated.

The charm of womanly proportion is in the long curve from armpit to ankle, which is so different from the beauty of a manly figure. The depression at the so called waist line—only the meeting of two large muscles which in a beautiful woman should be slight—would better be ignored in the clothing for the sake of the greater beauty of the whole sweep.

It is to be understood that the long curves are made up of shorter contours, one gently melting into another. A form made up of graceful sweeps alone would be a weak, nerveless, insipid thing.

These proportions should be so understood and so thoroughly appreciated as to be always in mind, else a beautiful human form will not be recognized. Use physical exercises to attain the perfection of these curves. Hang pictures showing them where they may grow into your thoughts.—[Harper's Bazar.

The Throat's Independent Brain.

"Did you ever know," said a well known specialist, as he deftly inserted a looking glass into the roof of the sufferer's mouth, "that the throat has a brain of its own? No? I suppose few of the laity do know it, but it's a fact. There is a small ganglia which exercises direct control over the muscles of the throat and acts as its brain. Of course, it is subservient to the genuine brain, but at the same time does a good deal of independent thinking for itself. It is very timid and suspicious at any strange objects that come near the throat. For this reason it is very difficult for a physician to operate on the throat. Before anything can be done in this direction it is necessary for the operator to gain the confidence of the little brain that dominates it. It frequently takes weeks before this confidence can be secured, and until it is secured it is impossible to operate. When the little brain is finally made to understand that no harm is intended it, but that the physician is actuated by friendly motives, it will submit to almost any treatment, however painful.

"But woe be to the man who attempts rough treatment to the throat before gaining the little brain's confidence, and in spite of its protests. His operations will be resented with violent paroxysms, first of the throat, then of the diaphragm, and, if the operator still persists, the patient will be thrown into convulsions. Still more curious is the fact that this little brain has a memory, and if once frightened in this way it is almost impossible to ever gain its confidence, no matter how gentle the operator may be.

"I don't know whether its distrust would extend to other operators than the one who frightened it or not. I think I will try the experiment some time of seeing whether it can remember faces."—[Philadelphia Press.

An Electrical Saw.

It has been noticed that platinum, when placed in an electrical current, is heated to a dull redness. This fact is the basis of the invention of an electrical saw which will cut quickly and neatly the hardest wood.

The device is made of steel wire, upon which is deposited metallic platinum. By connecting this modified wire with the terminals of four Bunsen batteries the platinum is heated to a bright redness, and the saw is ready for business.

A New Measurer.

An ingenious device for measuring distances, and which will be likely to interest architects and builders, is an invention of an English firm. It consists of a small revolving wheel which operates a spindle, the revolutions being accurately registered by a dial counter. By running the distance wheel along a wall or other surface the recorder will show how many feet have been measured. There is practically no limit to the distance that may be determined by this little device.

READABLE PARAGRAPHS.

In Athens 15 public schools remained closed all last year because the teachers refused to teach until their salaries should be raised.

So eminent a statistician as Dr. Talmage estimates that Solomon at one time possessed $3,400,000,000 in gold and $5,145,000,000 in silver.

The pipe smoked by the Sandwich Islander is made of virgin cork lined with meerschaum, and is curious by reason of the pattern on the cork made by the insects which feed upon the trees.

It is well worth remembering that if after dust and dirt are removed from boots and shoes they are rubbed with a soft cloth and a very little vaseline before blacking they will look better and last longer.

The numbers of cloisters and monks in Spain have increased with astounding rapidity of late years. Spain now has 29,220 monks and 25,000 nuns, in 1,330 cloisters and 179 orders. In Barcelona alone there are 163 cloisters for women. In the last 14 years the number of monks in Spain has been sextupled, and the number of nuns has been doubled.

The empress of Austria has lost all interest in dress and courtly ceremonials of state since the death of her son. The wonderful parure of diamonds in process of construction at the time of his death was sold. She travels incognito about the continent in plainest garb, but her love for roses remains unchanged. She still delights in their perfume and tintings.

There is a man down on State street who makes a good living by renting his turtles to restaurants for advertising purposes. He has four, and they are "whoppers." He receives $2 per day for each, and they are always in demand. They are left outside the door on the day before turtle soup is served up, and create a run next day for the soup. Instead of being in it they are playing an engagement at another restaurant.—[St. Louis Globe Democrat.

More than half a million enthusiastic women are united in philanthropic, intellectual, and cooperate work for the advancement of the interest and privileges of womanhood in the great national associations incorporated under the names of the National Woman's Christian Association, National Suffrage Association, National Centenary Association of the Universalist Church, the Wimodaughsis, the King's Daughters, and the Association of Working Girls' Societies. The interests to which these different organizations devote most patient and continuous endeavor ramify in interesting lines of work, through every possible phase of woman's need.

Language of the Mustache.

Physiognomists learn something of character from the mustache. As the form of the upper lip and the regions about it have largely to do with the feelings, pride, self reliance, manliness, vanity, and other qualities that give self control, the mustache is more particularly connected with the expression of those qualities. When the mustache is ragged and, as it were, flying hither and thither, there is a lack of self control. When it is straight and orderly the reverse is the case, other things of course taken into account. If there is a tendency to curl at the outer ends, there is a tendency to ambition, vanity, or display. When the curl turns upward there is a geniality combined with a love of approbation; when the inclination is downward there is a more sedate turn of mind, not unaccompanied with gloom. It is worthy of remark that good natured men will, in playing with the mustache, invariably give it an upward inclination, whereas cross grained or morose men will pull it obliquely downward.

Not What She Expected.

"Miss Cribber—Mildred," he began earnestly, after a pause in the conversation, "do you know that I feel quite lonely and friendless at times? My life has not been like that of most men. Without relatives or friends or a home of my own, I yearn for some one in whom I can confide—for one who would take more than a friendly interest in my welfare."

"Yes, Mr. Dewdly," she said, as he paused. "Go on."

"Of late," he continued, "I have felt a regard for you that never existed before. You have noticed, have you not, Mildred?"

"Yes, Mr. Dewdly."

"This feeling," said he, taking her hand, "has prompted me to speak to you as I do to-night, Mildred, will you be——"

He paused again.

"Will I what?" she asked encouragingly, while her heart throbbed wildly with expectation.

"Will you be a sister to me?"

He took his hat to go shortly afterward, but she didn't ask him what his hurry was.

Why He Carried a Cane.

"I carry a cane from motives of economy," said a young lawyer. "I graduated from college five years ago, and I haven't carried a stick since my freshman year. Still, as I am not such a fool as not to know enough to get out of the rain, I have always carried an umbrella in bad weather. As a matter of fact I found I was losing about 12 umbrellas a year, simply because of not carrying a cane. I never thought of my umbrella unless it was actually raining when I got outside and could return quick enough to get it before some one grabbed it. One day I lost my own umbrella and my wife's as well. The two cost $15. Since then I have carried a cane on pleasant days and I never lose an umbrella. It's a great economy."

War's Hard Decree.

At Jaffa Napoleon signed the order for the killing of 1,200 prisoners. He himself is authority for the statement, and even his most friendly biographer (Abbot) gives the story. Napoleon, at St. Helena, defended his action on the ground that there was insufficient food for his soldiers even, and that the prisoners killed had been previously captured at El Arish, paroled, and started for Bagdad. They were captured defending the garrison at Jaffa.

THE WHITE, WHITE ROSE.

O Georgia girl, with the storm-black eye,
Don't you mind long ago when the troops marched by,
Down the quaint old town of Maryland.
The sorry little lad in Stonewall's band?
'Twas a beautiful eve of a blue June day,
In his tattered cap and jacket of gray;
You smiled, but you pressed the sun-brown hand
Of the sorry little lad in Stonewall's band.

O Georgia girl, with the hanging hair
Of russet and gold in the sundown air,
Don't you mind that rose from the borderland
That you gave to the lad in Stonewall's band?
'Twas a white rose, white as rose could be,
And you stood 'neath the leaves of a maple tree,
A queen all crowned. 'Twas a beautiful thing,
And the lad on the chestnut horse was king.

O Georgia girl, with the tripping feet,
Don't you mind that house on the great big street?
And the ball that night, and the banner-decked hill?
For a bold old rebel was Dr. McGill!
Oh, the waltz, and the seat on the winding stair,
And the storm-black eyes, and the red-gold
hair,
And smile, ah! smile like the noontime sun,
O Georgia girl, was it all for fun?

O Georgia girl 'twas a sweet farewell
To exchange for the dust of shot and shell
At Gettysburg. But the gold-red hair,
And the eyes and the smile with the rose went there.
Safe under the stars of that flaming cross,
But the bullets made merry with the chestnut horse.

O, Georgia girl, 'tis a long time ago;
Still the seasons come and the roses blow.
There's the white, white rose, and the rose that is grand,
But none like the rose from the borderland.
'Tis a long time ago. Ah! sad are the years,
And broken the lute that was swept in tears;
Shattered the spear and crumbled with rust;
Tired are the feet with the battle-dust;
But the white, white rose the dews still unfurl
For the sorry little lad from the Georgia girl.
—[William Page Carter, in The Century.

"The Labor Question."

It is the unwillingness of the wage earner, and even of the capitalists often, to recognize the length and breadth of this labor question, which is to-day compelling the workpeople in Europe and America to try to meet the issue by antagonistic action, when the only way out of it is through a large cooperation between producing nations, in which the principle of "live and let live" is openly followed. This point is brought out in the comments of the English press on the proposed labor commission for Great Britain. It is not legislation so much as a proper knowledge of the conditions of each industry, and especially of the situation of the same industry in different countries, which determines what is best to do. For this reason, none of the English papers expect much directly from the appointment of a labor commission. Its chief value will be that it will give a fresh study of the facts, and that it will bring the leaders of business and of industry together to discuss practical questions, so as to find out the truth about them, and to frame methods of action which will tide over existing difficulties without legislation.

What is wanted is intelligence on both sides, the willingness to accept the economic truth as a fundamental and regulative principle. The demands of a large proportion of the wage earners at the present time would ultimately wreck and ruin the business corporation or house which should grant them. It is not so much the unwillingness to yield as the impossibility of yielding and continuing in business which weighs upon employers of labor. The present industrial movement is advancing to the point where both parties must accept the truth as it exists, the truth for the laboring man, and the truth for the capitalist, not a compromise, not one party taking advantage of another, not legislation binding both parties where they need to be free, but the truth of the whole situation as it affects industries in general and the economic and commercial principles on which our modern life is based. The English labor commission, if it should work in this spirit, will accomplish something worth while, and in this country, where such a commission seems impossible, we must work our way out through discussion and experiment until both parties are prepared to take broader views, and each is willing to see the situation from the point of view of the other.—[Boston Herald.

Blood From a Tree.

Throckmorton county, Texas, possesses a natural curiosity in the shape of a large wild peach tree which, when cut in any part, exudes a sap almost the exact color and consistency of fresh blood. Botanists have confessed themselves at a loss to account for the peculiarity which they are unanimous, however, in ascribing to some coloring matter absorbed from the soil in which it grows and which is, in all probability, the correct way of accounting for it, as cuttings from the tree planted elsewhere invariably fail to develop the same peculiarity. The people at large, however, are disposed to look upon the tree as something uncanny, and as many as a dozen stories, all more or less bloodcurdling, are poured into any visitor's ears concerning it.

It is said that no negro will pass within half a mile of it at night for any sum that can be offered. The tree is a splendid specimen, and has obtained a greater size than is usual in its species. It belongs to J. R. Love, a farmer of the vicinity, who has been obliged to surround it with a high fence to protect it from injury at the hands of curiosity seekers, who have hacked it for the sake of obtaining a sight of the sap.—[Philadelphia Times.

Lake Superior to Be Utilized.

Since the organization of a company to utilize the water power of Niagara Falls an Englishman has organized another company to employ the water power produced by the fall from Lake Superior at Sault Ste. Marie to Lake Huron. It is estimated that 236,000 horse power are running away without an equivalent. It is proposed to build two canals—one on the Canadian side and the other on the United States side—the canals to be five miles long and 1,000 feet wide. It is expected that sufficient power will be obtained from these expensive races to furnish innumerable industries.

A Startling Astronomical Fact.

Professor Charles A. Young, the eminent Princeton astronomer, recently sat chatting in the court of the Palace. One of his listeners could not refrain from asking him in an offhand way:

"What is to you the most wonderful and startling fact of astronomy?"

"The fact that your great Lick telescope reveals about 100,000,000 of stars, and that every one of them is a sun theoretically, and by analogy giving light and heat to his planets. You know the Lick telescope reveals stars so small that it would require 30,000 of them to be visible to the naked eye."—[San Francisco Examiner.

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
DR. G. C. OSGOOD,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
DR. J. F. KINCHELOE,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

DO YOU READ
THE COSMOPOLITAN?

THAT BRIGHT, SPARKLING MAGAZINE?

The cheapest illustrated monthly in the world. 25 cents a number; $2 40 per year. Edition for December, 1890, 100,000 copies.

The Cosmopolitan is literally what the New York Times calls it, "At its price, the brightest, most varied and best edited of the magazines." An unusual opportunity for new subscribers, for one year only:

The Cosmopolitan, per year	$2 40
Bellefonte Republican, per year	1 50
Price of the two publications	3 90
We will furnish both for only	3 00

This offer is only to new subscribers to The Cosmopolitan, and only for one year.

"It has more articles in each number that are readable, and fewer uninteresting pages, than any of its contemporaries." Boston Journal.

The Cosmopolitan furnishes for the first time in magazine literature a splendidly illustrated periodical at a price hitherto deemed impossible. Try it for a year. It will be a liberal education to every member of the household. It will make the nights pass pleasantly. It will give you more for the money than you can obtain in any other form. Do you want a first-class magazine, giving annually 1888 pages of the ablest writers, with more than 1000 illustrations, by the cleverest artists—a readable magazine as money can make—one that makes a specialty of live subjects

"The marvel is how publishers can give so much for the money." Philadelphia Evening Call.

AUNT [illegible]'S
MEDICATED HERB PAD
USED BY THE HOLLAND DUTCH FOR HALF A CENTURY
The Most Robust People in the World

Cures by Penetration and Inhalation

A Thorough Disinfectant

THE DISCOVERY

Of the particular Herbs for curing and preventing disease by disinfecting and changing the nature of impure air as breathed in the lungs was discovered over 50 years ago by AUNT RACHAEL SPEER, an old noted nurse now over 86 years old, who, from her youth up has been the most successful nurse known.

She always has and still does go through rain or shine to freely answer calls from the sick.

It was at labor of love without pay and without price.

AUNT RACHAEL has gathered the Herbs and made and applied thousands of these pad to rich and poor, without charge, and in every instance the effects were wonderful.

The Pad is made by quilting certain herb and medicine between flaps of muslin, and when worn they are made wet or damp, at frequent intervals, with a tincture which accompanies the Pad.

This tincture combining with the Herbs in the Pad is absorbed through the pores of the skin and the aroma that arises before the nostrils purifies the air you breathe. It is a prevention and cure.

It is a wonderful discovery. Address:

"Saturday Night"
Immensely Popular.

The Leading Family Paper of the United States.

The hold which this beautiful illustrated weekly retains upon the people's confidence is astonishing, but it is due entirely to its varied contents. The value of its stories is not measured by the enormous amount of money they cost, but by the eagerness of the people to read them. It takes ten tons of paper every week to print it. That is over 20,000 pounds. And ten times twenty thousand persons anxiously await its weekly coming.

Every weekly issue of the "Saturday Night" contains a quality and quantity of literary materials satisfying to every member of the family, young or old.

The most gifted authors seek the "Saturday Night" as the channel by which they may gain a reputation. Its pictures are gems of beauty, produced by the best art sts.

A new story every second week.

Each paper has six continued stories, as many poems, items of interest, the latest fashions, answers to correspondents, and a variety of humorous and entertaining articles. Specimen copies free.

DESIRABLE PROPERTY FOR SALE!

The undersigned offers for sale his HANDSOME RESIDENCE AND STORE PROPERTIES, situate in Snow Shoe, Centre county, Pa., AT A GREAT SACRIFICE. They are located on the principal thoroughfares of the town and make the most desirable places that any one could want. The store has always enjoyed an elegant trade and has been doing a running business of $40,000 a year. As the business of Snow Shoe has almost doubled in the last few years I feel confident that the store's trade, when properly managed, can be pushed above this figure. I am selling solely on account of a desire to change my line of work. If you have money to invest this is an exceptional opportunity to place it at an extremely reasonable rate. Snow Shoe is one of the most beautiful spots in Pennsylvania. Write for particulars, or call upon

The Colonel Called Him "Sonny."

Mr. Al. G. Field tells a good one on Count Magri, the present husband of Mrs. General Tom Thumb, and who will appear in the opera house, this place, on next Monday. Mr. Field said it was earlier in the season while they were playing in New Orleans and it so happened that the Mrs. Tom Thumb combination was 'doing' the Crescent City at the same time and both companies put up at the same hotel of which Colonel Gilbert was proprietor. When the Count got ready to leave he asked for his bill which was rendered by the clerk. When the Count got it he took but one look and then got mad, for the bill was enormous. He went to the office and talked hot and withering to the clerk, all the time striking his fists as if he meant fight. About this time Colonel Gilbert happened in and the Count appealed to him, still raving and strutting. The Colonel, not at first comprehending, put on his glasses, then leaning over the counter and gazing down very patronizingly asked "what's the matter, sonny?" It won't do to record the Count's answer, but all the same, he got his bill reduced. See him next Monday and judge how funny it must have seemed to hear him talk fight to a six-foot man.

At this season of the year when malaria lurks in the air, and bad colds not an unfrequent visitor, we long for a quick and effective remedy. There is scarcely a home without a sufferer from some of the many ills the flesh is heir to. A stimulant is after the intermediator. It is quick and effective. It brings relief and saves doctors bills. We can reccommend Mr. Max Klein for anything in the liquor line. His silver age Rye at $1.50 per quart is the best whiskey in the market. He will sell a 5 y Pennsylvania Rye Whiskey six years old, at 1.00 for each quart or s x for $5 00. Send for his price list and catalogue and menti n this paper.
Address MAX KLEIN,
82 Federal st., Allegheny, Pa.

A Sad Accident.

On Wednesday morning while Al. Field's minstrels were preparing to parade a crowd of boys and girls had congregated around the vicinity of the car eager to see the company in line. A number of boys were equipped with gaudy banners which they flaunted back and forth. A team of horses being driven along the street frightened at the banners and suddenly jumped to one side, knocking a little girl, daughter of Mr. Jas. Rote, of Coleville, down and breaking a limb. The injured child was picked up and conveyed to her home in a passing buggy.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The undersigned having been restored to health by simple means, after suffering for several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease 'Comsumption," is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure To those who desire it, he will cheerfully send (free of charge) a copy of the prescription used, which will find a sure cure for Consumption, Asthma, Catarrh, Bronchitis and all throat and lung Maladies. He hopes all sufferers will try his Remedy, as it is invaluable. Those desiring the prescription, which will cost them nothing and may prove a blessing, will please address REV. EDWARD A. WILTON, Williamsburg, Kings County, New York.

—Miss Bishop had between fifteen and twenty pupils present at her dancing class on Friday night. Quite a number of visitors were also present. Miss Bishop organizes another class in Lock Haven this evening, the one she had been teaching closing on Thursday evening with a grand Assembly.

Mr. J W. Gephart departed for the Quaker City this morning, where he goes on business relative to making arrangements for an early resumption of the Valentine furnace.

THE DEAD SHOWMAN.

ESTIMATES OF P. T. BARNUM'S FORTUNE. HIS GIFTS TO BRIDGEPORT.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 8.—The funeral of P. T. Barnum, the famous showman who died last evening, will be held on Friday afternoon in North Congregational church. In a general way Mr. Barnum had prescribed directions for his funeral. He wished it to be of a private character and unostentatious. Of snow and parade he said he had enough during his life, and his commitment to his last resting place he wished devoid of all ceremony beyond the simplest tribute of affection and respect He directed that interment should be made at Mountain Grove cemetery, where several years ago he erected a massive granite monument of simple design. His wishes will, it is believed, be strictly carried out.

Mr. Barnum's fortune is estimated at from $7,000,000 to $10,000,000. With characteristic shrewdness he probated his will in his own lifetime. He got years ahead of lawyers and litigious heirs. His will, unlike Samuel Tilden's, cannot be contested. He went at it in a way both practical and humorous. He called a council of eminent physicians, who examined him, and pronounced him eminently sane. Then he drew up his will in the presence of disinterested witnesses, and had it probated.

Demores's Magazine

Were you ever at sea in a storm—a storm near a coast, when you expected the next wave would dash the good ship to pieces? If you ever have passed through such an experience you will remember the relief felt when you realize you were near a life saving station with its corps of heroes, and you will be glad to know more of the life of those "brave watchers by the sea"; and even a confirmed stay-at-home will be interested in the handsomely illustrated article on "Our Life-Saving Service" in the May number of Demorest's Family Magazine.

For Weak Lungs.

For those with weak lungs the Aunt Rachel Medicated Pad is the most successful remedy. The lungs get a double benefit, both by penetration and by inhalation from the herbs used, and especially so when moistened with the tincture that accompanies the Pads. The herbs in this Pad have been used for asthma and consumption in Holland for centuries, and with wonderful success Also worn as a disinfectant.

If the Pad is moistened as directed the wearer will not catch disease that is contagious. It disinfects the air in front of the face and breathing the vapor destroys the germ inhaled. Address, Aunt Rachel Pad Co. Passaic, N. J.

No Appropriation.

Notwithstanding the fact that Senator Meek and Representative McCormick, of Centre county, used their best endeavors to secure an appropriation for the State College at the present session of the legislature it seems as if they have failed utterly, judging from the schedule of appropriations as passed and which was published on Saturday. Now this is too bad and only hope that the majority of those who defeated the State College appropriation bill may soon have cause to rue their action in the affair.

A Pleasant Herb Drink.

The best cure we know of for constipation and Headache is the pleasant herb drink called Lane's Family Medicine. It is said to be Orange grape root, combined with simple herbs, and is made for use by pouring boiling water onto the dried roots and herbs. It is one of the best spring medicines, and is remarkably efficacious in all blood disorders. It is now the sovereign remedy with ladies for clearing up the complexion. Druggists sell the packages at 50c. and $1.

Sudden Death of Henry Geistwhite

Henry Geistwhite, formerly of Centre Hall and for the past three weeks a resident of Tyrone, died at half past eleven o'clock Thursday morning at the home of his son-in-law, Theodore Steelle, on Cottage avenue. Last Sunday evening Mr. Geistwhite was taken ill with la grippe, but his illness was not considered either by himself or friends at the time. He was not confined to the house Yesterday afternoon he was on his way home when illnes suddenly seized him and he fell at the corner of Main and Clearfield streets. He was carried into the home of Samuel Heister where he revived and was subsequently carried home. Last night he felt much better, and this morning he was out doors for a short time. About fifteen minutes past eleven o'clock his condition again became worse, and he was assisted upstairs to bed. The disease had attacked the heart and with unexpected suddenness the end came. Only fifteen minutes after he went up stairs he breathed his last.

The deceased was born sixty-nine years ago in Huntingdon county. About 1842 he was united in marriage at Lewistown, with Miss Margaret E. Foltz. After a residence of some years at Lewistown, he removed to Centre Hall where for nearly forty years he had made his home, engaged in that vicinity in farming and laboring. Three weeks ago he came to Tyrone to work with his son-in-law, Theodore Steele, contractor in Masonary. Not feeling very well, he had only worked a few days since he came to this place.

Mr. Geistwhite was the father of twelve children, eight of whom with his aged wife, survive him. The children: Samuel Geistwhite, Mrs. J. M. Lieb and Miss Fannie Geistwhite, of Bellefonte; Mrs. Theodore Steele, of Tyrone; Mrs. James Worrell, Mrs. Mary Lyons and Miss Amelia Geistwhite, of Centre Hall; Mrs. Roland Gingrich, of Spruce Creek.

Happy Hoosiers.

Wm. Timmons, Postmaster of Idaville, Ind., writes: "Electric Bitters has done more for me than all other medicines combined, for that bad feelidg arising from Kidney and liver trouble. John Leslie, farmer and stockman, of same place, says: Find Electric Bitters to be the best Kidney and Liver medicine, made me feel like a new man. J. W. Gardner, hardware merchant, same town, says: Electric Bitters is just the thing for a man who is all run down and don't care whether he lives or dies; he found new strenth, good appetite and felt just like he had a new lease on life. Only 60c. a bottle, at C. M. Parrish's Drug Store.

Forty-four Pictures for Ten Cents.

By actual count there are forty-four pictures, all of them the most interesting character, in this week's issue of Frank Leslie's Illustrated newspaper, which is printed both in English and German. The first page is a striking scene in the corridor of the Washington Pension Office. A full page is devoted to the reproduction of some beautiful amateur photographs, and there are illustrations of the California Citrus Fair, Gambling at Monte Carlo, Street Beggars of New York, a hunt breakfast, and a Richmond street scene. Price ten cents. It is full of choice Sunday reading.

Look here, Friend, are You Sick?

Do you suffer from Dyspepsia, Indigestion Sour Stomach, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Lost Appetite, Billiousness, Exhaustion or tired feeling, Pains in Chest or Lungs, Dry Cough, Night-sweats, Nervous Debility, or any form of Consumption? If so, send to Prof. Hart, 88 Warren St., New York, who will send you free, by mail, a bottle of medicine which is a sure cure. Send to-day. d&w-tf

Try It.

A retired farmer, who has had time to try experiments and note results, says that for the last three years he has planted a bean or two in each potato hill, and has never seen a bug on potato tops where beans were growing on the same hill. If this is a protection against the bugs, the remedy is simple, and will pay for the trouble in the crop of beans.

Many Immigrants Registered.

New York, April 10.—To-day's registration of immigrants at the barge office landing station has been the largest since last summer. There were 4,332 sterage passengers from six steamships registered. The two steamships arrived yesterday with 2,197 Italians, too late to be landed.

Was Instantly Killed.

Huntingdon, Pa., April 10.—One of the most shocking of the many recent railroad fatalities in this place occurred this morning shortly after midnight. The victim was William U. Flagle, aged 21, son of Josiah Flagle, who resides at 8th and Washington street, in West Huntingdon. With several companions, young Flagle had gone to Lewistown yesterday morning, and in the evening boarded a west bound freight train on his homeward trip. On reaching the Thirteenth crossing Flagle jumped from the train to the plank crossing, but scarcely had his feet touched the boards until eastern express, just then passing and which he failed to observe, struck him, hurling him over a box car on a siding into the canal bed below, a distance of forty feet. His neck was broken and also his right leg in two places, and the upper part of his body bruised and battered terribly. His death was instantaneous. The remains were moved to the residence of his parents, from which the interment will take place tomorrow at 3 o'clock.

Protect Your Health.

Cold and moisture combined have a torporizing effect upon the bodily organs and the digestive and secretive processes are apt to be more tardily performed in winter than in the fall. The same is true, also, of the excretory functions. The bowels are often sluggish, and the pores of the skin throw off but little waste matter at this season. The system, therefore, requires opening up a little, and also purifying and regulating, and the safest, surest and most thorough tonic and alterative that can be used for these purposes is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters Persons who wish to escape the rheumatic twinges, the dyspeptic agonies, the painful disturbances of the bowels, the bilious attacks, and the nervous visitations, so common at this time of the year, will do well to reinforce their systems with this renowned vegetable stomachic and invigorant. It improves the appetite, strengthens the stomach, cheers the spirits, and renovates the whole physique.

A "Green" Groceryman.

A couple days ago a stranger rang the bell of one of Bellefonte's most prominent citizens' residence and, when the servant made her appearance, meekly inquired if Mrs. Letters was in. On being told that no such person lived there he departed and it was a puzzle for a long time why he inquired for Mrs. Letters. Finally the enigma was solved by the fact that a plate on the door was inscribed "Letters," but it meant mail matter instead of the family name. On inquiry it was found that the stranger in question was a traveling agent for a grocery house and that he didn't know that Bellefonte had the free delivery service. He must have been a green groceryman.

How She Growls.

Rome, April 10.—It is reported that if the United States Government does not answer the Marquis Imperioli's note by to-morrow, Porter, the American minister, will be ordered to leave Italy, and the whole Italian legation in Washington will be recalled and the Italian interests left in charge of the British minister.

—Snakes are already being killed in Clinton county. We see nothing strange in there being "snakes" down there but we didn't know they killed them at this season of the year.

A Silver Lining.

We clip the following from the Millheim Journal: "The Bartges brothers, owning the William Bartges farm near Logan Mills, in Sugar Valley, will in the near future begin to dig for silver on their farm. Mr. Adam Bartges of near Aaronsburg, one of the owners, tells us that his brother David, who lives on the farm, recently met an old Indian in Centre Hall, who had come in from the territories, and in conversation with him found that the red man was in possession of some important facts relative to a silver mine which he claimed underlies the surface of the Bartges farm. Mr. Bartges prevailed on the Indian to accompany him to his home in Sugar Valley. Upon arriving there the Indian proceeded to point out the exact spot where the vein is to be located and claimed that his people among them his father, a man of 112 years of age, used to make ornaments from silver obtained from that spot. The information furnished seemed so direct and creditable that the Messrs. Bartges intend to investigate the matter, and if there is any silver in it, it is to come out We hope they will not be doomed to disappointment."

Spotted Fever in New Jersey.

Elizabeth, N. J., April 10.—A patient has been removed from a Polish colony in the tenement district of the city to the hospital, where the staff pronounced the case spotted, or typus fever. The board of health was consulted and the sick man conveyed to Riverside hospital. It is the first case of the kind in Elizabeth and creates much alarm.

A Lumber Firm Fails.

Lancaster, April 10.—Bumgardner, Eberman & Co., coal and lumber dealers of this city, have made an assignment. Their liabilities will be several thousand dollars, and their attorney is unable to furnish any estimate whatever of their assets. Edwin Eberman, a member of the firm, assigned on Monday with liabilities of $400,000.

A Long Liver.

John Linn, of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, an uncle of John B. Linn, Esq., of Bellefonte and of J. Merrill Linn, of Lewisburg, died on the 9th instant in the 95th year of his age. He was born in Buffalo valley, then Northumberland but now Union county, January 8, 1797.

WHY!

WHEREFORE. The virtues or merits of a remedy for pain do not consist in its being as good for relief as other remedies, but in the fact that it is better, in being more prompt and sure, and therefore the best for the specific purpose. It is not an idle catchline that strikes the eye thus:

ST. JACOBS OIL
THE GREAT REMEDY FOR PAIN, IS THE BEST.

It is the best cure for all aches and pains, and it holds

THE TRUE PROOF.

To this specific fact Archbishops, Bishops, Clergymen, Lawyers, Doctors, Governors, Generals, Senators, Members of Congress and Legislatures, U. S. Consuls, Army and Navy Officers Mayors and Officials, testify and unite in saying: "We suffered pain;

OTHER REMEDIES FAILED,

and St. Jacobs Oil cured promptly and permanently." For the same reason

A Story About Mr. Barnum.

HIS OWN ACCOUNT OF HOW HE TRIED TO CAPTURE MR. SPURGEON.

James Milliken, of Bellefonte, is an inimitable story teller. To a group of listeners he talked about Barnum Friday.

"While traveling abroad it was my custom," he said, "when in London, during the life-time of that wonderful pulpit orator, Rev. Dr. Cumming, always to go to hear him preach. I noted upon several occasions that it was his custom after service to hold an informal reception in an adjoining room for those of his congregation who might desire to call upon him and pay their respects. His congregation was gathered from remote parts of the city. Upon one occasion I followed in. He greeted me with a pleasant salutation and the compliment that he he had observed me frequently in the congregation. I told him that I was an American traveler and always had great pleasure in coming to hear him preach, but the special object of my visit this morning was to ask him if we might ever hope for the pleasure of seeing and hearing him in America. He replied:

"'Oh! think of that great ocean that lies between, and these gray hairs that cluster upon my head. I fear not now. I have many friends in America, and they would, I know, be glad to see me; and, by the way, I was offered large money by one of your peculiar citizens to come to America and preach a series of sermons.'

"And turning to his wife, he said: 'My dear, what was the name of that peculiar American who offered me such large money to go there to preach?' His wife replied: 'Mr. Barnum.' He then said to me: 'I vaguely remembered something of Mr. Barnum's career, and I said to him I have not quite come to that yet.'

'Some two years after this interview I met, by accident, Mr. Barnum at the Continental Hotel breakfast table, and to him I related the exact interview I had had with Dr. Cumming. Mr. Barnum laughed and said: Yes, yes; I tried to get him, as he has told you, and failing him I went to see Rev. Mr. Spurgeon, and I made the proposition to him that if he would come to America and deliver a series of sermons that I would pay him a large stipulated price. He listened to me attentively, and then said: 'If I understand you correctly, Mr. Barnum, you will, to enable you to get back this money you pay to me and something of profit for yourself, charge each person who comes for tickets to hear me preach.' 'Yes, yes,' I said to him, of course.' 'Then, Mr. Barnum, don't you see that I would only be carrying the message of truth and righteousness to the rich? My Master, Mr. Barnum, commands me to take the message to the poor also—I cannot accept your terms.'

"And Mr. Barnum smiled at the incident."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

La Grippe Again.

During the epidemic of La Grippe last season Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, proved to be the best remedy. Reports from the many who used it confirm this statement. They were not only quickly relieved, but the disease left no bad after results. We ask you to give this remedy a trial and we guarantee that you will be satisfied with the results, or the purchase price will be refunded. It has no equal in La Grippe, or any Throat, Chest or Lung Trouble. Trial bottles free at P. M. Parrish's Drug Store. Large bottles, 50c and $1.00.

Triumph of
The only true
ELIXIR OF LIFE AND HEALTH.

is one that promotes digestion, improves the appetite, cleanses the liver, purifies the blood, and stimulates brain and nerves without injurious reaction, and one that may be taken alike by adult or infant. Profane compounds made of vile rum or bad whiskey, sweetened and flavored, under the titles of bitters, tonics, &c, produce effects far worse than the diseases for which they are taken.

Vinegar Bitters is a pure tonic, a nervine without being narcotic, a purifier without poison, a liver tonic without purging, and a blood purifying stimulant without alcohol. The only medicine with such powers in the world.

A GENUINE TEMPERANCE BEVERAGE, far surpassing alcoholic preparations as a tonic as it might be called.

LIQUID GOLD,

since it strengthens, invigorates and gives new digestion, nutrition, assimilation, circulation, respiration, and health to the whole system, while life is maintained—we literally take no fatality to speculate.

It is too much to assert that the equal of Vinegar Bitters does not exist, as no counterpart or compound with similar virtues has ever been known.

is remarkable for nothing else, will be immortalized by the production of the medicinal fruits, roots and herbs of which this Bitters is composed. Many of them used by the Indians and the medical profession in the treatment of chills and fevers, rheumatism, catarrh, kidney diseases, neuralgia, headaches, liver complaint, kidney disease, jaundice, gout, piles, boils, skin diseases, &c, &c., too numerous to mention, but easily understood when the action of the Bitters on the vital functions is remembered. The discovery was entirely accidental but the present

SAPOLIO

Girls who use SAPOLIO are QUICKLY MARRIED

SAPOLIO is one of the best known city luxuries and each time a cake is used an hour is saved. On floors, tables and painted work it acts like a charm. For scouring pots, pans and metals it has no equal. If your store-keeper does not keep it you should insist upon his doing so, as it always gives satisfaction and its immense sale all over the United States makes it an almost necessary article to any well supplied store. Everything shines after its use, and even the children delight in using it in their attempts to help around the house.

—The York Daily has issued an industrial edition.

—Have you pleasant neighbors since you moved.

—See ad. of R. J. Schadd & Bro. in another column.

—Very few trees were planted in Bellefonte on Friday.

—The Y. M. C. A. convention on Sunday was well attended.

—A warm shower, the first of the season, fell Tuesday night.

—Only two more weeks until court convenes in this place.

—No danger of it getting too dry for radishes and little onions.

—New steps have been put to the Petriken residence on High street.

—Only three more weeks for the oyster—then it will be all ice cream.

—In a little while the first straw hat of the season will be peeping out.

—Overcoats have been discarded and a few straw hats are blooming.

—It is just possible that the State College may yet get an appropriation.

—Garden making, cleaning lawns and trout fishing is now the order of the day.

—Now is the time to remove that ash pile and old garbage from the back yard.

—Potatoes are selling in Bellefonte for $1.10; in Centre Hall they are quoted at $1.15.

—See in another column the ad. of R. J. Schadd & Brother, steam fitters, plumbers, etc.

—According to the Times "C. L. Brown, of Bellefonte, is at the Continental, Philadelphia."

—Mrs. James McClintic, of Centre Hall, died on Saturdry after an illness of several months.

—The fence surrounding the lawn in front of the James Sommerville residence is being repaired.

—On April 27th the I. O. O. F. will celebrate its 72nd anniversary. Has arrived at a good old age.

—Mr. Henry Harman has received a half car load of flour and chop at his store on North Thomas street.

—Mr. John S. Furst, son of Hon. A. O. Furst, arrived in town from Williamsport Wednesday morning.

—'Dot Leetle German Band' is heading this way, according to items appearing in our neighboring exchanges.

—We are sorry to announce the illness of Mrs. Edward T. Tutan, who is confined to her room with la grippe.

—A very rustic sight on Monday afternoon was that of a number of women seated on the banks of Spring creek and fishing

—The ore banks of the Valentine Iron Company started up this morning on full time and it is expected that the furnaces will start in a week or two.

—The King of Italy is now making a jackass of himself simply because some American newspaper caricatured him as a monkey. Oh, such littlenes.

—Buckwheat cakes have passed away. Soon it will be little onions, rhubarb pie and strawberry short cake. Oh!

—It is just one year Thursday, April 9th, since Altred Andrews was hanged in the jail yard, this place, for the murder of Clara Price.

—Thus far we hear of no circuses heading for Bellefonte. Barnum will be in Williamsport but it looks as if he was going to give Bellefonte the go-by.

—Rev. J. A. Woodcock and family are now cosily ensconced in the rooms in the Humes building on Allegheny street, once occupied by the First National Bank.

—Twenty-six years ago yesterday since President Abraham Lincoln breathed his last from the effects of the assassin's bullet. What a difference between then and now.

—The funeral of Mr. Geistwhite, who died in Tyrone on Thursday, occured at Centre Hall Saturday, the body having been conveyed from Tyrone to Centre Hall on Friday.

—The $75,000 of bonds for the New Valentine Iron Company have been all taken and it wont be long now until active preparations will be made to put the works in operation.

—It is said that W. E. Gray, Esq. is seriously considering whether or not to get a bicycle and then take it in regular doses as an anti-fat. Will says he needs something to reduce his flesh.

—General Hastings should have no hesitation about delivering his lecture, "Reminiscences of the Johnstown Flood," in Bellefonte, and we feel secure in saying that we don't believe he has.

—The county jail is undergoing a course of thorough repairing. The floors have been relaid and new water closets put in and now it would be next to impossible for any prisoner to escape either of those ways.

—The county commissioners of Clinton and Centre counties inspected the union bridge at Beech Creek on Thursday, but so far no determination has been reached whether a new bridge will be built or the old one repaired.

—Negotiations are pending on the leasing of the glass works meadow and putting it in good shape for an Athletic Park. That is the best use the ground can now be put to and there should be no difficulty in effecting a lease.

—The latest authorities advise the eating of half of an egg shell when one eats egg as well as the munching of part of the bone when one eats chicken. This may be good medical advice but it is undoubtedly hard medicine and solid food.

—If you have any old clothes lying around when housecleaning time comes this year you had better give them to the tramp, as the tax bill now pending provides for the taxation of all old and worn out clothing.

—Does advertising pay? Well, a sufficient answer is the fact that Mr. Barnum died worth about $5,000,000, and when he came to Bellefonte he always advertised most in DAILY NEWS and Republican. "A word to the wise is sufficient."

—We are sorry to hear of the illness of Mrs. Bearam Galbraith. This estimable lady is suffering from a very severe cold recently contracted and at her advanced age—78 years—it is more serious than it would be on a younger person so afflicted.

—Queer, isn't it; how some people's tastes differ? Very few men like to be dunned for money on an empty stomach but the writer recently overheard a man say that to get money from a Linn streeter you must strike them before breakfast and you'll get it every time.

—Judge Furst was in town between trains only about an hour the other day, but in that short time he had a painful exhibition of the effect of the granting of license last month. When at the station talking to a friend, a drunken man staggered up to him, and in reply to the Judge's question where did you get your liquor, came too familiarly close and pointed to the place.—Huntingdon Local News.

—A gentleman exhibited a basket of fresh fish on Friday in which there was 26 pounds. They were suckers and measured from ten to eighteen inches in length. He was selling them out to anybody that wanted fish at five cents per pound.

—This has been a dandy week for the introduction of apportionment bills in the state government. Some four or five were introduced and a half dozen more are in course of preparation to be fired off next week.

—Thus far we have omitted to mention the fact that ex-deputy sheriff Wilson was now employed at Ashcroft's hotel in Philipsburg, as head clerk in that establishment, but it is a fact, nevertheless, that he is. And patrons of that house will find him a first-class fellow.

—Now is the time for the Christian people of Bellefonte and community to show their true colors by contributing to the fund for the liquidation of the debt hanging over the Y. M. C. A. and also to pledge reasonable amounts to its future support so that the reading room, hall and gymnasium may again be opened.

—Mr. Philip Young, of Port Matilda, and who is a nephew of Mr. Aaron Williams, of this place, was fatally injured on Wednesday by a cave-in at the fire brick works at Sandy Ridge. The young man's left arm was broken in three places and he was badly injured internally. Late Thursday evening he was living yet but very low.

—Foxes seem to be very numerous this spring. Hardly a day passes but from one to a dozen probates are presented at the Commissioner's office for payment, and they run from one fox each up to eighteen. By the way, Port Matilda seems to be a good place for foxes, judging from the number of probates brought in by Recorder Morrison, and he is only at home over Sunday.

—"Woodman, spare that tree," was not exemplified by Col. J. L. Spangler as the massive shade tree that has stood in front of his residence for scores of years has been uprooted and chopped into kindling wood. However it will greatly improve the pavement at that place as the trees massive roots took up most half the space from curb to yard wall.

—During the first week in April there were about fifty deeds entered for record in the recorder's office. And these in addition to a whole host of transfers, assignments, mortgages, etc. Such a rush generally occurs about the first of April and is caused by the changing of property from one owner to another, borrowing money on mortgage and such like.

—Editor Dana, of the New York Sun, has had his salary raised from twenty-five to fifty thousand dollars per year. Glad of it; this will now enable the dear old man to buy himself a new pair of trousers and henceforth dispense with that inevitable patch on the seat of his pants which always seemed so conspicuous when he had his picture taken hind side front.

—The streets of Bellefonte are now in a cleaner and better condition than they have been for some time, and especially in the vicinity of the diamond. And, by the way, what a contrast is presented between the clean condition of the streets and the almost filthy condition of the court house yard, which contains all the dirt and refuse of the past twelve months.

—The time for the regular session of April court is fast approaching and, in the meantime, Centre county has three criminals running loose somewhere and no attempt is being made to capture them. Such tardiness in justice is excusable only in those states where they punish all criminals with a hempen necktie, and those who do not deserve this punishment rove free until a more convenient season. This matter of leaving so many prisoners escape will be hard on Mr. Meyer.

Our readers are requested to use Salvation Oil for all pains. It is a sure cure. Price 25 cents.

FURTHER PARTICULARS.

ABOUT HOW DAVID WOOMER WAS KILLED ON FRIDAY.

From the Tyrone Herald.

Friday evening about 8 o'clock David Porter Woomer, a Bald Eagle Valley freight brakeman, was the victim of an accident which caused his death at two o'clock this morning. The train on which he was a brakeman and Stewart Cowen, conductor, left Tyrone yard in the afternoon about five o'clock, and when it reached Port Matilda it was about eight o'clock and consequently very dark. Mr. Woomer attempted to walk over the train to the caboose, but by some unavoidable accident he fell down between two cars onto the rails and was run over. He was not instantly killed and was picked up and brought to Tyrone where he was given skillful medical attention but to no purpose, for about two o'clock this morning he passed away. He was not injured about the head or body, but both his legs below the knees were terribly mutilated and it is supposed he died from loss of blood. The remains were given in charge of undertaker J. H. Burley, who prepared them for burial.

The deceased was the son of Henry Woomer and wife, of Woomer's Settlement, a short distance northwest of Bald Eagle, and was between twenty-three and twenty-four years of age at the time of his sad death. He was boarding with John Priest, on Main street, until quite recently when he went to board with Miss Nancy Woodring, of East Tyrone. He is a cousin of Nathaniel Woomer, who was killed at McCann's crossing on the T. & C. railroad on February 14, last.

His untimely death is not only a sad blow to his parents, both of whom survive him, but to all his many friends and relatives. He also leaves six brothers and two sisters, viz: Andrew, William and Thomas, who live at home with their parents; Jerry and Samuel, of Oceola; Harry who lives in Stony Point: Mrs. Samuel Harty, of north of East Tyrone, and Joanna Woomer, of Penn'a Furnace.

The remains were taken to the home of the deceased's father this afternoon, from which place the funeral will occur on Monday morning at 10.30 o'clock, the interment to be in the Bald Eagle cemetery.

Protect Your Health.

Cold and moistere combined have a torporizing effect upon the bodily organs and the digestive and secretive processes are apt to be more tardily performed in winter than in the fall. The same is true, also, of the excretory functions. The bowels are often sluggish, and the pores of the skin throw off but little waste matter at this season. The system, therefore, requires opening up a little, and also purifying and regulating, and the safest, surest and most thorough tonic and alterative that can be used for these purposes is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Persons who wish to escape the rheumatic twinges, the dyspeptic agonies, the painful disturbances of the bowels, the bilious attacks, and the nervous visitations, so common at this time of the year, will do well to reinforce their systems with this renowned vegetable stomachic and invigorant. It improves the appetite, strengthens the stomach, cheers the spirits, and renovates the whole physique.

Mrs. Uriah Fleisher.

We regret to announce the death of the esteemed wife of Mr. Uriah Fleisher, which occurred on Monday. Mrs. Fleisher has been quite ill for a number of months from a disease of the stomach which caused her much suffering, but she bore it with true Christian fortitude until death called her to the land where suffering is not known. Mrs. Fleisher was a daughter of Mr. George Spangler. Her funeral took place Thursday, at the Tusseyville cemetery.

Millinery Opening.

I would respectfully announce to the ladies of Bellefonte and vicinity that a Millinery Opening will be held to-morrow, Thursday, by MRS. ROBERT L. GILMOUR, on Allegheny street. Largest and finest display of Trimmed Hats ever brought to Bellefonte. The services of a first class New York Milliner has been secured. There will also be a fine display of fancy goods and ladies underwear. Everybody is invited to call and see the stock.

Easily Understood.

Last week an article appeared in one of our contemporaries purporting to be an answer to the NEWS' article on the proposition made to council to advertise Bellefonte in the New York World. The article in question was filled with stereotyped academic expressions and proclaimed at once the fact that the writer of said article and the individual who made the proposition to council were one and the same. And it might just here be added that the individuals' interest in that affair amounts to about $100 which he would receive as his portion was the proposition accepted, aside from which it would make not the turn of a hand's difference to him. As to "blooming the town," "virtue in newspaper advertising, etc.," which he speaks of, it might be in place just here to remark that It is just such individuals as this, who preach and practice foreign policy and patronage, that are most effective in killing a town in short order. The gentleman has our compliments.

The Trials of Winter

Winter is a trying period, even to those who do not have long consumptions, but it is double trying to those who are weak and delicate, or who have a tendency to the various diseases that are bred and fostered in the stagnant atmosphere of closed and heated houses. The system should be kept toned and toned up with a liberal course of S. S. S., the great blood tonic and purifier. It acts like a charm. It increases the appetite, soothes the nerves, and beautifies the complexion—in short it makes life well worth living.

Over Eight Feet of Snow.

Joseph Housler, of Lock Haven, kept a record of the winter's storms from December first to April first:

December had one day rain storm and 10 days of snow storms; fall of snow during month 48 inches. January had 5 days rain storms and 5 days of snow storms; fall of snow during month 11 inches. February had 8 days rain storms and 5 days of snow storms; fall of snow during month 14 inches. March had 11 days rain storms and 3 days of snow storms; fall of snow during month 25 inches. Total 8 feet and 2 inches. The highest temperature recorded was on the 17th and 18th of February at the time of the late flood, when the mercury registered 71 degrees; the lowest was one degree below zero, on December 20th and on March 1st and 2d.

For Weak Lungs.

For those with weak lungs the Aunt Rachel Medicated Pad is the most successful remedy. The lungs get a double benefit, both by penetration and by inhalation from the herbs used, and especially so when moistened with the tincture that accompanies the Pads. The hers in this Pad have been used for asthma and consumption in Holland for centuries, and with wonderful success. Also worn as a disinfectant.

If the Pad is moistened as directed the wearer will not catch disease that is contagious. It disinfects the air in front of the face and breathing the vapor destroys the germ inhaled. Address, Aunt Rachel Pad Co., Passaic, N. J.

Why Not in Bellefonte

A society of young ladies has been organized at Beech Creek, the object of which is to stop the practice of chewing "spruce gum." The members of the society are pledged not to chew gum and also to abstain from the use in conversation of all slang phrases.

If you want a position, on salary, expenses paid, see advertisement on page seventh, headed "A Chance to Make Money."

Commenced Work.

A large force of men commenced work at the Valentine Iron Company's works on Tuesday, and the force will be increased as needed until full operations will be resumed in about three weeks. This is good news and something that will cause every man's heart to rejoice.

THEY now call Mr. Cleveland the "claimant," because of his persistency in claiming the democratic presidential nomination.

Personal Pencilings.

Miss Emily Valentine is visiting friends in West Chester.

District Attorney J. C. Meyer is rusticating at Aaronsburg.

Miss Anna Bright, of Pottsville, a niece of Mrs. Blanchard on East Linn street, is visiting at the residence of Mrs. Louisa Hoy, near Bellefonte.

Mr. Daniel Garman returned on Tuesday evening from Philadelphia where he attended the funeral of his brother Martin. His young nephew came home with him.

Harry H. Shaw, of Howard, who some time ago was employed by Mr W. B. Shirk, at his meat market in this place is now, we are pleased to note, after an absence of some months back in Bellefonte again and can now be found at his old place with Mr. Shirk.

THE ENEMY IN AMBUSH.

Every one knows that at this season of the year disease lies in ambush, every ready to pounce and prey upon the weak. And any fair-minded physician will tell you that the only safeguard lies in keeping the system thoroughly keyed up by the use (not abuse) of a reliable stimulant. Hundreds of tonics are advertised for this purpose, but experience shows that a pure rye whiskey is the only one to be depended upon. Max Klein's "Silver Age" and "Duquesne" brands are sold under a sworn guarantee of absolute purity; an affidavit accompanies each bottle. "Silver Age" sells for $1.50 and "Duquesne" at $1.25 per full quart bottle. The difference in age makes the difference in price—both brands are warranted to be unadulterated.

You can get Guckenheimer, Finch, Gibson or Overholt from Mr. Klein at $1.00 per quart, or six quarts for $5.00. His stock of wines, brandies, gins, etc., is acknowledged to be the largest and choicest in the state. Goods shipped to all parts of the U. S. Send for catalogue and price list, mentioning this paper. MAX KLEIN, 82 Federal st., Allegheny, Pa.
